Klein,2017-09-15 AS SEEN IN MALCOLM GALDWELL S BLINK Discover the groundbreaking classic business book on effective decision making How do people really make decisions By drawing on prior experience and using a combination of intuition and analysis We have all seen images of firefighters rescuing people from burning buildings and paramedics treating bombing victims How do these individuals make the split second decisions that save lives Most studies of decision making based on artificial tasks assigned in laboratory settings view people as biased and unskilled In this modern business classic Gary A Klein proposes a naturalistic approach to decision making which views people as gaining experience that then enables them to use a combination of intuition and analysis to make decisions To illustrate this approach Klein tells stories of people from pilots to chess masters acting under such real life constraints as time pressure high stakes personal responsibility and shifting conditions With more than 50 000 copies sold in 6 different languages Sources of Power has been cited in professional journals and even by Malcolm Gladwell in Blink Author Gary Klein has collaborated with Nobel laureate Daniel Kahneman and served on a team that redesigned the White House Situation Room to support more effective decision making The model of decision making Klein proposes in the book has been adopted in many fields including law enforcement training and petrochemical plant operation Naval Airborne Ordnance United States. Rips,2003-01-01 Lance Rips describes a unified theory of natural deductive reasoning and fashions a working model of deduction with strong experimental support that is capable of playing a central role in mental life In this provocative book Lance Rips describes a unified theory of natural deductive reasoning and fashions a working model of deduction with strong experimental support that is capable of playing a central role in mental life Rips argues that certain inference principles are so central to our notion of intelligence and rationality that they deserve serious psychological investigation to determine their role in individuals beliefs and conjectures Asserting that cognitive scientists should consider deductive reasoning as a basis for thinking Rips develops a theory of natural reasoning abilities and shows how it predicts mental successes and failures in a range of cognitive tasks In parts I and II of the book Rips builds insights from cognitive psychology logic and artificial intelligence into a unified theoretical structure He defends the idea that deduction depends on the ability to construct mental proofs actual memory units that link given information to conclusions it warrants From this base Rips develops a computational model of deduction based on two cognitive skills the ability to make suppositions or assumptions and the ability to posit sub goals for conclusions A wide variety of original experiments support this model including studies of human subjects evaluating logical arguments as well as following and remembering proofs Unlike previous theories of mental proof this one handles names and variables in a general way This capability enables deduction to play a crucial role in other thought processes such as classifying and problem solving In part III Rips compares the theory to earlier approaches in psychology which confined the study of deduction to a small group of tasks and examines whether the theory is too rational or too irrational in its mode of thought
