Social Critique And Commitment:

Social Critique and Commitment Majid Al Haj, Michael Saltman, Zvi Sobel, 2005 Social Critique and Commitment Essays in Honor of Henry Rosenfeld is a compilation of primarily original essays that deal with Israel from a critical position. The essays touch upon central concerns such as the Arab Israeli conflict, Arabs in Israel, the economy and social policy. A second emphasis characterizing the volume and reflecting the work of Professor Rosenfeld is a sharp and critical analysis of ethnographic data mostly with regard to Israeli society but in certain cases ranging beyond. In addition to articles addressing the unraveling of Israel's welfare network, the impact of neo-liberal economic policies, the changing societal attitudes toward the rule of law, are essays dealing with international terrorism, spirit possession, the Bedouin of Sinai, and ethnic cleansing. The essays highlight the conflicted nature of Israeli society and emphasize that what is occurring on this small canvas has ramifications going beyond the particular and specific, bearing regional and indeed world-wide implications.

Immanent Critique Titus Stahl, 2021-11-11. When we criticize social institutions and practices, what kinds of reasons can we offer for such criticism? Political philosophers often assume that we must rely on universal moral principles that are not necessarily connected to the particular social practices of our communities. Traditionally, continental critical theory has rejected this claim through its endorsement of the method of immanent critique. Immanent critique is a critique of social practices that draws on norms already present within these practices to demand social change rather than merely conservatively reproducing them. Titus Stahl defends the claim that such a critique is not only possible but also has politically powerful potential. Taking up recent developments in analytic enquiry into collective intentionality theory and in the philosophy of language, he argues that all social practices rest on structures of mutual recognition between persons that allow social theorists to reconstruct hidden norms present within these practices. Starting from a comprehensive critique of contemporary critical theory, Immanent Critique also spells out the consequences of this line of thought for the practice of social critique for the social sciences and for political philosophy. Post-growth Politics Peter Ferguson, 2018-06-19 This book uses a critical political economy approach to develop an historically and politically grounded set of strategies for states to move toward a post growth decarbonised global economy It begins by examining the social and ecological costs of and limits to economic growth and determines that significant decarbonisation of the global economy can only be achieved if conventional growth based economies are replaced by an alternative post growth economy Set apart from many other works in the field by its critical political economy approach to policy development this book offers the reader three distinctive features First it places the analysis in historical context in order to demonstrate how the global political economy is constantly changing with respect to distributions of wealth power and fundamental norms and explores how states might harness and transform these contingent patterns in a post growth direction Second the book is not only concerned with developing and advocating post growth policies but also with how these measures can be incorporated into the high level domestic and international strategies pursued by states to ensure their political legitimacy and economic and geopolitical survival Third rather than proposing an idealised and politically naive model of socioecological transformation the proposed post growth policy framework is highly cognisant of the geopolitical and international economic pressures facing states and demonstrates how these can be managed in the transition toward a post growth economy This book represents an invaluable resource for policymakers academics activists and students wishing to study or contribute to the transition to a post growth decarbonised economy
