Transition from School to Work United States. General Accounting Office, 1993      Transition from School to Work Iowa. Department of Public Instruction, Mountain Plains Regional Resource Center (U.S.), 1985 This informational guide is intended to provide basic information about the transition from school to work for handicapped students This area has received increasing attention over the last several years due primarily to the U S Department of Education s Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services initiative and to the rather dismal employment statistics of persons with handicaps The information in this guide should assist the reader in better understanding the transition from school to work concept and should underscore the need for career planning for handicapped students      Transition Fred Jay Krieg, Peggy A. Brown, John Eric Ballard, 1995 There are great parallels between the School to Work Opportunities Act and the legislation which produced transition services for individuals with disabilities The rationale is clearly the same a real recognition and concern exists about the difficult transition that faces all high school graduates as they prepare to live on their own assume new roles in the adult community and enter the world of work This project was implemented to develop a training package for transition services to assist transition teams in Middle Schools and High Schools It provides extensive information about the School to Work Opportunities Act and its mandates for transition services The legislation intended primarily to help the 75 percent of American youth who will not pursue a traditional four year college degree is designed to assist these young people by formulating a universal high quality school to work transition system that enables youth in the United States to identify and navigate paths to productive and progressively more rewarding roles in the workplace Chapters include School to Work Definition and Legislation The Transition Process The Transition Profile and Theory into Practice Extensive appendixes which account for approximately one half of the publication include inventories surveys the transition profiles forms and case studies developed for this project Contains a 44 item bibliography JBJ      The Transition from School to Work Michael West, 1983      Transition from School to Work United States Accounting Office (GAO), 2018-05-14 Transition From School to Work States Are Developing New Strategies to Prepare Students for Jobs      Learning to work : making the transition from school to work. , 1995 Over the past decade public attention has been drawn to the difficulties that many young adults are having in finding their way in the changing economy and earning a decent living A broad movement is emerging across the country to better connect school with career opportunities and further education to help these young adults succeed In 1994 Congress responded by passing the School to Work Opportunities Act STWOA which assists states and localities in establishing comprehensive school to work transition systems Soon after the school to work legislation was passed by Congress OTA was asked by the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources and the House Committee on Education and Labor to assess the potential and problems of work based learning as a component of school to work As the report shows work based learning has considerable promise but will be difficult to implement Work based learning can potentially help students see the relevance of their academic studies later in life allow students to explore career options and help them develop needed occupational skills But the implementation of good work based learning programs will require considerable effort on the part of schools and participating businesses Whether many businesses can be recruited to participate remains to be seen

The Career Toolkit for High School Students Carol J. Carter, Gary Izumo, Diane Lindsey Reeves, Sarah Kravits, 2000-08 For high school level Career Exploration and Life Skills courses This thorough introduction to the skills high school students need to succeed in the workplace is presented in an easy to read student friendly format The text adapted from a popular college level text provides a complete framework for career exploration and is designed to motivate students to make these skills a part of their lives Students and Faculty alike are encouraged to visit the central website for all Keys franchise materials www.carterkeys.com where you can correspond with the author team view their speaking calendar benefit from current articles and more

The Transition from School to Work Michael A. West, Peggy Newton, 1982 A study examined the school to work transition of a group of 16 year olds from two mining communities in Nottinghamshire England During the study the 174 school leavers were interviewed within 6 months prior to their leaving school Nine months later 103 of the original 174 youths were interviewed again Finally the youths were asked to complete a short questionnaire approximately 2 5 years after beginning their working lives A total of 154 of the original respondents returned the questionnaire Included among the topics covered during the various interviews were the following the youths attitudes toward school and their teachers occupational choice means of finding jobs and sources of help aims and attainments entry into work work attitudes attitudes toward their supervisors career changes and school to work transitions Those adolescents who attended the school with academic streaming had significantly more positive attitudes toward school and their teachers and significantly more negative attitudes toward their jobs than did their counterparts from the school that does not have academic streaming While the adolescent girls in the study appeared to like school more than did their male counterparts they were less happy at work less apt to be considering promotion and lower paid MN

Learning to Work Thomas R. Bailey, 2010-12-01 With job prospects clouded for even the well educated those who leave school with no training beyond high school now face great challenges in making the transition from school to work Emerging research and experience in other countries have led many to believe that the workplace can play a much larger educational role than it now does The School to Work Opportunity Act of 1994 for example requires programs funded under the act to include educationally guided work placements as part of the educational strategy Although there is a growing consensus that employers have much to contribute significant barriers stand in the way of increasing work based education This volume the result of a Brookings conference on employer participation in education focuses on such questions as How can an adequate number of employers be recruited How can the quality of placements be guaranteed How can discrimination and inequities in providing access to good placements be avoided What must educators do to work effectively with employers to develop high quality on the job educational experiences And what policies can encourage participation and monitor and improve the education that takes place on the job The book includes the perspectives of employers educators and policymakers and draws lessons from experience with employer involvement in Europe It concludes with suggestions for future research and policy designed to increase the quality and quantity of work based education Chapters were written by editor Thomas Bailey as well as Paul Osterman Massachusetts Institute of Technology David Stern Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development and Margaret Vickers Technical Education Research Centers Comments are included by George Chambliss Xavier Del Buono Harry Featherstone Jack Jennings Governor John R McKernan Jr Stuart Rosenfeld Anthony Sarmiento Bernd Sohngen Marc S Tucker Cheryl Fields Tyler Peter van den Dool Joan Wills and Robert Yurasits Brookings Dialogues on Public Policy

Transition from School to Work, 1987 From School to Work United States. National Commission for Manpower Policy, 1976 A collection of policy papers T p Improving School-to-Work Transitions David Neumark, 2007-01-09 As anxieties about America s economic competitiveness mounted in the 1980s so too did concerns that the nation s schools were not adequately preparing young people for the modern workplace Spurred by widespread joblessness and job instability among young adults the federal government launched ambitious educational reforms in the 1990s to promote career development activities for students In recent years however the federal government has shifted its focus to test based reforms like No Child Left Behind that emphasize purely academic subjects At this critical juncture in education reform Improving School To Work Transitions edited by David Neumark weighs the successes and failures of the 90s era school to work initiatives and assesses how high schools colleges and government can help youths make a smoother transition into stable well paying employment Drawing on evidence from national longitudinal studies surveys interviews and case studies the contributors to Improving School To Work Transitions offer thought provoking perspectives on a variety of aspects of the school to work problem Deborah Reed Christopher Jepsen and Laura Hill emphasize the importance of focusing school to work programs on the diverse needs of different demographic groups particularly immigrants who represent a growing proportion of the youth population David Neumark and Donna Rothstein investigate the impact of school to work programs on the forgotten half students at the greatest risk of not attending college Using data from the 1997 National Longitudinal Study of Youth they find that participation by these students in programs like job shadowing mentoring and summer internships raise employment and college attendance rates among men and earnings among women In a study of nine high schools with National Academy Foundation career academies Terry Orr and her fellow researchers find that career academy participants are more engaged in school and are more likely to attend a four year college than their peers Nan Maxwell studies the skills demanded in entry level jobs and finds that many supposedly low skilled jobs actually demand extensive skills in reading writing and math as well as the new basic skills of communication and problem solving Maxwell recommends that school districts collaborate with researchers to identify which skills are most in demand in their local labor markets At a time when test based educational reforms are making career development programs increasingly vulnerable it is worth examining the possibilities and challenges of integrating career related learning into the school environment Written for educators policymakers researchers and anyone concerned about how schools are shaping the economic opportunities of young people Improving School To Work Transitions provides an authoritative guide to a crucial issue in education reform
