Twilight Beach:

Beaches of the Western Australian Coast Andrew D. Short,2005-12-31 This book is about the entire Western Australian coast between Eucla and Roebuck Bay and includes Rottnest Island

Islands of Inquiry Geoffrey Richard Clark,Sue O'Connor,Bryan Foss Leach,2008-06-01 Many of the papers in this volume present new and innovative research into the processes of maritime colonisation processes that affect archaeological contexts from islands to continents Others shift focus from process to the archaeology of maritime places from the Bering to the Torres Straits providing highly detailed discussions of how living by and with the sea is woven into all elements of human life from subsistence to trade and to ritual Of equal importance are more abstract discussions of islands as natural places refashioned by human occupation either through the introduction of new organisms or new systems of production and consumption These transformation stories gain further texture and variety through close examinations of some of the more significant consequences of colonisation and migration particularly the creation of new cultural identities A final set of papers explores the ways in which the techniques of archaeological sciences have provided insights into the fauna of the islands and the human history of such places Provided by publisher

Houhora Louise Furey,2002 For more than 30 years Houhora in the far north of the North Island has been regarded as one of the most important archaeological sites in New Zealand Radiocarbon dates suggested that it was one of the earliest sites in the northern North Island It has produced an assemblage of artefacts with strong stylistic links to sites of the same period in various tropical Polynesian island groups It has also produced important evidence about the diet of the early settlers in Northland Yet neither the site nor its contents have ever been fully described The results presented here focus on the archaeology and artefacts of Houhora and follow on from an earlier project cataloguing the numerous artefacts and faunal collections attributed to the site Furey n d The initial aim was the management of the collection in Auckland Museum collating cataloguing and describing what is widely acknowledged as an important example of the material culture of early Polynesian settlers in New Zealand To under stand how much the museum s excavated collection is representative of the material culture from the site the well known but unstudied artefacts in the Wagener Museum at Houhora were also examined The Living Age ,1922 The Boy Builder ,1915 Blue Peter ,1927 Poirieria ,1981 The Studio ,1898
