Wake Of The Electron:

Magnetotails in the Solar System Andreas Keiling, Caitríona Jackman, Peter Delamere, 2015-02-02 All magnetized planets in our solar system Mercury Earth Jupiter Saturn Uranus and Neptune interact strongly with the solar wind and possess well developed magnetotails It is not only the strongly magnetized planets that have magnetotails Mars and Venus have no global intrinsic magnetic field yet they possess induced magnetotails Comets have magnetotails that are formed by the draping of the interplanetary magnetic field In the case of planetary satellites moons the magnetotail refers to the wake region behind the satellite in the flow of either the solar wind or the magnetosphere of its parent planet The largest magnetotail of all in our solar system is the heliotail the magnetotail of the heliosphere The variety of solar wind conditions planetary rotation rates ionospheric conductivity and physical dimensions provide an outstanding opportunity to extend our understanding of the influence of these factors on magnetotail processes and structures Volume highlights include Discussion on why a magnetotail is a fundamental problem of magnetospheric physics Unique collection of tutorials on a large range of magnetotails in our solar system In depth reviews comparing magnetotail processes at Earth with other magnetotail structures found throughout the heliosphere Collectively Magnetotails in the Solar System brings together for the first time in one book a collection of tutorials and current developments addressing different types of magnetotails As a result this book should appeal to a broad community of space scientists and it should also be of interest to astronomers who are looking at tail like structures beyond our solar system

Harvey, UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA LOS ANGELES DEPT OF AEROSPACE ENGINEERING., United States. Air Force. Office of Scientific Research, United States. Air Force. Office of Aerospace Research, 1968 A narrow beam of 10 50 KV electrons is coming into wide use as a probe of rarefied gas flows Such a beam forms ions in many gases including nitrogen These ions form a stream or wake downstream of the beam This work is a study of such a wake in a free jet of nitrogen for the purpose of finding if possible conditions under which information about the state of the gas may be inferred from the behavior of the wake Relations are derived between the wake flux cross section and gas lateral and axial temperatures at the beam Perturbations due to collisions and induced fields are considered An ion wake is found experimentally using as a probe a conductor at the local flow potential The flux cross section of the wake is shown to consist of two components one proportional to gas density at the beam the other approximately independent of gas density The density dependent component shows approximate agreement with theory The constant component is discussed and some suggestions as to its origin are advanced Author A Collection of Technical Papers ,1970
