Terrestrial Mammal Conservation: Global Evidence for the Effects of Interventions for Terrestrial Mammals Excluding Bats and Primates Nick A. Littlewood, Ricardo Rocha, Rebecca K. Smith, Philip A. Martin, Sarah L. Lockhart, Rebecca F. Schoonover, Elspeth Wilman, Andrew J. Bladon, Katie A. Sainsbury, Stuart Pimm, William J. Sutherland, 2020-11-30

Terrestrial Mammal Conservation provides a thorough summary of the available scientific evidence of what is known or not known about the effectiveness of all of the conservation actions for wild terrestrial mammals across the world excluding bats and primates which are covered in separate synopses Actions are organized into categories based on the International Union for Conservation of Nature classifications of direct threats and conservation actions Over the course of fifteen chapters the authors consider interventions as wide ranging as creating uncultivated margins around fields prescribed burning setting hunting quotas and removing non native mammals This book is written in an accessible style and is designed to be an invaluable resource for anyone concerned with the practical conservation of terrestrial mammals The authors consulted an international group of terrestrial mammal experts and conservationists to produce this synopsis Funding was provided by the MAVA Foundation Arcadia and National Geographic Big Cats Initiative

Terrestrial Mammal Conservation is the seventeenth publication in the Conservation Evidence Series linked to the online resource www.ConservationEvidence.com Conservation Evidence Synopses are designed to promote a more evidence based approach to biodiversity conservation Others in the series include Bat Conservation Primate Conservation Bird Conservation and Forest Conservation and more are in preparation Expert assessment of the evidence summarised within synopses is provided online and within the annual publication What Works in Conservation

Handbook of Road Ecology Rodney van der Ree, Daniel J. Smith, Clara Grilo, 2015-04-02 Winner of the IENE Project Award 2016 This authoritative volume brings together some of the world's leading researchers academics practitioners and transportation agency personnel to present the current status of the ecological sustainability of the linear infrastructure primarily road rail and utility easements that dissect and fragment landscapes globally It outlines the potential impacts demonstrates how this infrastructure is being improved and how broad ecological principles are applied to mitigate the impact of road networks on wildlife Research and monitoring is an important aspect of road ecology encompassing all phases of a transportation project This book covers research and monitoring to span the entire project continuum starting with planning and design through construction and into maintenance and management It focuses on impacts and solutions for species groups and specific regions with particular emphasis on the unique challenges facing Asia South America and Africa Other key features Contributions from authors originating from over 25 countries including from all continents Each chapter summarizes important lessons and includes lists of further reading and thoroughly up to date references Highlights principles that address key points relevant to all phases in all road projects Explains best practices based on a number of successful international case studies Chapters are stand alone but they also build upon and complement each other extensive cross referencing directs the reader to relevant material elsewhere in the book Handbook of Road Ecology offers a comprehensive summary of approximately 30 years of global efforts to quantify the impacts of roads and traffic and implement effective mitigation As such it is essential reading for those involved in the planning design assessment and construction of new roads the management and maintenance of existing roads and the modifying or retrofitting of existing roads and problem locations This handbook is an accessible resource for both developed and developing countries including government transportation agencies Government environmental conservation agencies NGOs and road funding and donor organisations Roosevelt Wildlife Bulletin ,1923

Wildlife-vehicle Collision and Crossing Mitigation Measures Marcel Pieter Huijser,2007 This report reviews 39 mitigation measures that reduce animal vehicle collisions and that provide habitat connectivity for wildlife across highways The overview is restricted to mitigation measures aimed at large terrestrial mammals deer size and larger However this report also includes information regarding how such measures may affect or benefit federally endangered or threatened species in Montana regardless of their size In addition to the detailed information for each mitigation measure a summary table is provided that provides at a glance information on the costs and benefits of the individual mitigation measures for which such data were available Furthermore the report graphically illustrates which measures have the best monetary balance the difference between benefits and costs and which measures reduce animal vehicle collisions and associated costs best Based on the results the authors of this report identified wildlife fencing with or without wildlife underpasses or a combination of wildlife underpasses and overpasses and animal detection systems with wildlife fencing as the most cost effective mitigation measures Animal detection systems without wildlife fences or wildlife fences with a high density of wildlife overpasses are also cost effective but more data on system effectiveness are needed before these systems are recommended for implementation rather than further study The final section of the report provides suggestions on the implementation or study for each of the 39 mitigation measures

Conservation Criminology Meredith L. Gore, 2017-03-14 This important new text introduces conservation criminology as the interdisciplinary study of environmental exploitation and risks at the intersection of human and natural systems Taking an interdisciplinary approach the book enhances understanding of the various human and organizational behaviors that pose risks to the environment humans and drive conservation crime As human population growth global market economies climate change deforestation and illegal exploitation of natural resources continue to increase academic research from numerous disciplines is needed to address these challenges Conservation Criminology promotes thinking about how unsustainable natural resources exploitation is a cause and a consequence of social conflict Case studies profiled in the book demonstrate this cause and effect type situation as well as innovative approaches for reducing risks to people and the environment This text encourages readers to consider how humans behave in response to environmental risks and the various mechanisms that constitute effective and ineffective approaches to enforcement of wildlife crimes including environmental and conservation policy Case studies from the USA Latin America Africa and Asia highlight corruption in conservation global trade in electronic waste illegal fishing illegal logging human wildlife conflict technology and space water insecurity wildlife disease and wildlife poaching Taken together chapters expand the reader's perspective and employ tools to understand and address environmental crimes and risks and to provide novel empirical evidence for positive change With established contributors providing interdisciplinary and global perspectives this book establishes a foundation for the emerging field of conservation criminology
