ESSAY

Windows light up early on the San Francisco skyline. The sun dips down before 5 p.m. in the Bay Area this time of year.

Dark days of winter can be the coziest

By Sarah Feldberg
The windows at the Oakland Zoo are creatures of the sun. During the brief days of winter, they sigh.
— You'll see them banking in the morning, as soon as there's a ray of sun, — says Anne Williams, vice president of manager for the zoo's California Trail exhibit.
The windows, tall-headed reptiles aren't just after the glimmers of warm light — a cold day, UV rays on their wings — which they require to live — they also bask in the sun and keep them healthy. Scientists, as they say, in the birds' best interest.
Of course, there's less of it this time of year, when darkness nibbles at mornings and small, sun-dappled windows, in slivers between trees, as the sun dips down before 5 p.m. End of day, windows light up early on the skyline, and the sun dips down before 5 p.m. in the Bay Area this time of year.

Is longer school day solution for vulnerable kids?

By Audrey Brown
California schools are about to embark on an ambitious and expensive gamble to try to close the achievement gap and address gaps in learning. Enacted this school year by three hours and the school year by 30 days, the measure is intended to help struggling to keep up with their peers.
Schools can spend the additional time on any activities outside regular school hours that contribute to students' learning and well-being. Some districts, like Franklin-McKinley in San Jose, already have implemented the program, and many have opted for high-dose tutoring and small-group learning.
State officials expect districts will have fully implemented the program by 2024.

'Terrifying': Two dead, 12 injured; Eureka area sees damage, outages

By Julie Johnson, Jessica Flores, J.D. Morris and Jill Tucker
RIO DELL, Humboldt County — Homes tilted off foundations, windows shattered, pipes burst and debris everywhere after a powerful earthquake rocked coastal Northern California Tuesday. Fire trucks trapped in the firehouse and the hospital's emergency department unable to respond to urgent calls for help.
Two people who suffered medical emergencies during or right after the earthquake died. The preliminary 6.4 magnitude quake struck at 2:34 a.m., about 100 miles from Ferndale in Humboldt County, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. The town of about 1,200 people is just south of Eureka, about 80 miles from the Oregon border.
At least 12 people were injured, more than 50 others took shock the area.
The two people who died, ages 72 and 65, suffered the medical emergencies, including a cardiac incident, during or just after the temblor. Emergency responders couldn't get to them in time because the few ambulances located in the area were already dispatched to other areas, said Humboldt County Sheriff Williams Howard.
Another 12 were injured in the earthquake, including people.

App jolts Bay Area awake: MyShake warns residents hundreds of miles from epicenter

By Rachel Swan
When a 6.4 magnitude earthquake rattled coastal Northern California on Tuesday morning, Shelia Kinn, a retiree near the epicenter, and residents nearby in their grocers out and their doors slammed in sleep.
Hundreds of miles south in the Bay Area, library-eyed people were startled out of bed when a small alarm indicated their cell phones, up to two minutes before the shaking started.
Some hesitantly took to Twitter after the alert from the MyShake early warning system with its three-state chime and a man's computerized beeping. "Earthquake. Drop, cover, hold on. Shaking expected." And some were irritated when they reached the chime, they'd already left a car, but did not feel the ground sway beneath them.

Nevertheless, many also said they were grateful for the technology.
It only took seconds for reports of the Ferndale earthquake to spread across Northern California, after 27,000 MyShake users heard their phones vibrate, according to Rick Ward, a director of the Berkeley-based MyShake.

insightful monarch who has dealt ably with nine British Prime Ministers during her long reign from Winston Churchill to Theresa May It was of course not always straightforward and the Queen has found herself in hot water several times most notably during the marriage of Prince Charles and Diana Princess of Wales When Diana was tragically killed in a car crash the standing of the Royal Family was probably at its lowest ebb It is unlikely that we will ever see a monarch reign so long or so effectively again holding together a disparate group of nations each with its own aspirations customs and traditions Catherine Ryan has written an intriguing biography of one of the most famous women of modern times who at 91 years old still seems fit and healthy and looks very unlikely to hand over the reins to her successors any time soon
