Here's an overview of philosophical approaches to objectivity and truth in history, focusing on the positivist, relativist, postmodernist, and critical realism perspectives:

4.1. Positivist Approach

The positivist approach to historiography posits that history can be studied with the same objectivity and scientific rigor as the natural sciences. Positivists believe that historians should rely on empirical evidence, such as documents, artifacts, and statistical data, to construct factual narratives about the past. They emphasize the importance of observable phenomena and seek to establish general laws or patterns in historical development, akin to scientific laws. This perspective promotes the idea that objective truths about historical events can be uncovered through careful research and analysis, asserting that biases can be minimized through rigorous methodology.

4.2. Relativist Approach

The relativist approach challenges the notion of objective truth, arguing that truth is relative and heavily dependent on the historian's perspective, cultural context, and interpretive framework.
