Slave to the Body Lars Schroeder, 2003 Slave to the Body is the first comprehensive study of body politics in the Old South The book investigates how black and white male and female bodies were defined and thereby brought into existence as distinct corporealities The making and unmaking of Southern bodies took place in a variety of fields such as medicine sexuality religion beauty fashion or sports and it resulted in a hierarchy of corporeality in which blacks were much more embodied than whites and in which white men and black women marked the opposite poles of this typology of embodiment The dualism of black hyper bodies and white no bodies determined modes of social control While whites were regulated in modern disembodied ways slaves were controlled in pre modern ways via the inflicted flesh The despotic power whites exercised over blacks was inefficient in many ways but reformatory experiments failed because Southern whites were unable to think blacks differently Images of black hyper corporeality were so persuasive that white Southerners were incapable of creating less embodied more efficient and more tolerable modes of control In this sense Southern whites were slaves to their own body texts Contents Foucauldian Structuralism Constitutive Effects of Power Medical Body Dissection Display Experimentation Anesthesia Sexual Body Reproduction Eroticism Maternalism Artificial Reproduction Disciplined Body Temperance Anti Dancing Crusade Sports Religious Body Sin Salvation Mirroring Body Beauty Fashion Dandyism Hierarchy of Embodiment Function of Body Texts Regulative Effects of Power Declining Importance of the Body Penal Reform Modern Bio Politics Pre Modern Despotism Inefficiency of Despotism Economic and Social Costs of Subjugation Threats of War Breakdown of Despotism

Victorian Crime, Madness and Sensation Andrew Maunder, Grace Moore, 2004 Beginning with Victoria's enthronement and an exploration of sensationalist accounts of attacks on the Queen and ending with the notorious case of a fin de siècle killer Victorian Crime

Madness and Sensation throws new light on nineteenth century attitudes toward crime and deviance The essays which draw on both canonical and liminal texts examine the Victorian fascination with criminal psychology and pathology engaging with real life cases alongside fictional accounts by writers as diverse as Ainsworth Stevenson and Stoker Among the topics are shifting definitions of criminality and the ways in which discourses surrounding crime changed during the nineteenth century the literal and social criminalization of particular sex acts and the gendering of degeneration and insanity As fascinated as they were with criminality the Victorians were equally concerned with solving crime and this collection also focuses on the forces of law enforcement and nineteenth century attempts to read the criminal body as revealed in Victorian crime fiction and reportage Contributors engage with the detective figure and his growing professionalization while examining the role of science and technology both at home and in the Empire in solving cases Made in America Susan Smith,1929

Country Living ,1999 History and Computing III Evan Mawdsley,1990 The first conference of the UK branch of the Association of History and Computing brought together archivists computer specialists and history teachers from all levels of education This book contains a selection of the presentations from that meeting demonstrating the state of the art in historical computing in the specific area of databases The themes discussed include the nature of historical databases their creation from historical sources their analysis in research in political urban and medical history and their exploitation in teaching Art and Industry ,1951
