Water Saving Pocket File:

Water Saving Pocket File Anon,2005-02 Fresh water is vital to our existence After Antarctica Australia is the world s driest continent with an annual rainfall of 496 mm well below the global annual average of 746 mm Despite this stark reality each Australian uses over 1 million litres of water per year the greatest per capita rate of consumption in the world Water restrictions have now become a fact of life across Australia By altering the way in which we use water and by developing water efficient habits we reduce the risk of increasingly severe water restrictions and the prospect of serious water shortage What follows is a range of tips and practical measures to reduce water consumption Federal State and Local Governments are implementing policies and practices to encourage and enforce water saving behaviour For specific restrictions programmes and incentives contact your local water authority
