Stevenson's In The Eighties:

Stevenson's in the Eighties David J. Stanier, 1989 Art of the Eighties and Seventies Michael Stevenson, Johannes Cladders, Hans Hollein, 2006 Stevenson's book deals with the early history planning and construction of the Museum Abteiberg and in particular the relationship this public institution formed with Count Panza and his collection Count Panza had at the time arguably one of the most significant collections of minimal and conceptual art in private hands in Europe Panza's collection was to be on long term loan to the museum The purpose of my exhibition project was therefore to trace the history of this public private partnership its prospects and its eventual demise Stevenson's publication mimics books published by Rizzoli on the Panza collection in terms of scale typography and general design layouts Stevenson's Germany Charles Brunson Fletcher, 1920 A Catalogue of the Books and Manuscripts of Robert Louis Stevenson in the Library of the Late Harry Elkins Widener Harvard University. Stevens's work has been interpreted so variously and contradictorily that critics must first address the question of limits to the poetry's signifying potential before they can attempt to deepen our appreciation of it. In the first half of this book the limits of appropriating and contextualizing Stevens's The Snow Man in particular are investigated. Eeckhout does not undertake this reading with the negative purpose of disputing earlier interpretations but with the more positive intention of identifying the intrinsic qualities of the poetry that have been responsible for the remarkable amount of critical attention it has received.
