Taking Stock The Writing Process Movement In The 90s:

Taking Stock Lad Tobin, Thomas Newkirk, 1994 Taking Stock reassesses the ways that the writing process has been taught institutionalized researched and theorized Taking stock Lad Tobin, Thomas Newkirk, 1994 Networked Process Helen Foster, 2007-08-01 Helen Foster problematizes one of the dominant metaphors in rhetoric and composition the notion of writing process and in turn offers an important and engaging new approach for the future of the discipline one that directly addresses the complexities challenges and opportunities for writing research in a postmodern world

Microhistories of Composition Bruce McComiskey, 2016-04-01 Writing studies has been dominated throughout its history by grand narratives of the discipline but in this volume Bruce McComiskey begins to explore microhistory as a way to understand enrich and complicate how the field relates to its past Microhistory investigates the dialectical interaction of social history and cultural history enabling historians to examine uncommon sites objects and agents of historical significance overlooked by social history and restricted to local effects by cultural history This approach to historical scholarship is ideally suited for exploring the complexities of a discipline like composition Through an introduction and eleven chapters McComiskey and his contributors including major figures in the historical research of writing studies such as Louise Wetherbee Phelps Kelly Ritter and Neal Lerner develop focused narratives of particular significant moments or themes in disciplinary history They introduce microhistorical methodologies and illustrate their application and value for composition historians contributing to the complexity and adding momentum to the emerging trend within writing studies toward a richer reading of the field's past and future Scholars and historians of both composition and rhetoric will appreciate the fresh perspectives on institutional and disciplinary histories and larger issues of rhetorical agency and engagement enacted in writing classrooms that are found in Microhistories of Composition Other contributors include Cheryl E Ball Suzanne Bordelon Jacob Craig Matt Davis Douglas Eyman Brian Gogan David Gold Christine Martorana Bruce McComiskey Josh Mehler Annie S Mendenhall Kendra Mitchell Antony N Ricks David Stock Kathleen Blake Yancey Bret Zawilski and James T Zebroski Post-process Theory Thomas Kent, 1999 Breaking with the still dominant process tradition in composition studies post process theory or at least the different incarnations of post process theory discussed by the contributors represented in this collection of original essays endorses the fundamental idea that no codifiable or generalizable writing process exists or could exist Post process theorists hold that the practice of writing cannot be captured by a generalized process or a big theory Most post process theorists hold three assumptions about the act of writing writing is public writing is interpretive and writing is situated The first assumption is the commonsensical claim that writing constitutes a public interchange By interpretive act post process theorists generally mean something as broad as making sense of and not exclusively the ability to move from one code to another To interpret means more than merely to paraphrase it means to enter into a relationship of understanding with other language users And finally because writing is a public act that requires interpretive interaction with others writers always write from some position or some place Writers are never nowhere they are situated Leading theorists and widely published scholars in the field contributors are Nancy Blyler John Clifford Barbara Couture Nancy C DeJoy Sidney I Dobrin Elizabeth Ervin Helen Ewald David Foster Debra Journet Thomas Kent Gary A Olson Joseph Petraglia George Pullman David Russell and John Schilb Critical Expressivism Tara Roeder, Roseanne Gatto, 2015-04-15 Critical Expressivism is an ambitious attempt to re appropriate intellectual territory that has more often been charted by its detractors than by its proponents Indeed as Peter Elbow observes in his contribution to this volume As far as I can tell the term expressivist was coined and used only by people who wanted a word for people they disapproved of and wanted to discredit The editors and contributors to this collection invite readers to join them in a new conversation one informed by a belief that the term expressivism continues to have a vitally important function in our field

First Semester Jessica Restaino, 2012-02 Using a three part theoretical construct labor action and work as defined in Hannah Arendt's work of political and social theory The Human Condition and rich qualitative data gathered from course observations interviews and correspondence Jessica Restaino looks at the experiences of four new graduate students who are first year writing teachers at Public U a large state university Across Property Lines Candace Spigelman, 2000-02-16 Candace Spigelman investigates the dynamics of ownership in small group writing workshops basing her findings on case studies involving two groups a five member creative writing group meeting monthly at a local Philadelphia coffee bar and a four member college level writing group meeting in their composition classroom She explores the relationship between particular notions of intellectual property within each group as well as the effectiveness of writing groups that embrace these notions Addressing the negotiations between the public and private domains of writing within these groups she discovers that for both the committed writers and the novices values associated with textual ownership play a crucial role in writing group performance Spigelman discusses textual ownership intellectual property and writing group processes and then reviews theories relating to authorship and knowledge making After introducing the participants in each group discussing their texts and describing their workshop sessions she examines the writers avowed and implied beliefs about exchanging ideas and protecting individual property rights Spigelman stresses the necessary tension between individual and social aspects of writing practices She argues for the need to foster more collaborative activity among student writers by replicating the processes of writers working in nonacademic settings but also contends that all writers must be allowed to imagine their individual agency and authority as they compose Professing and Pedagogy Shari J. Stenberg, 2005

Dialogue, 1998 Getting Restless Nancy Welch, 1997 Drawing primarily on feminist and psychoanalytic theories Welch considers how revision can be redefined not as a process of increasing orientation toward a particular thesis or discourse community but instead as a process of dis orientation The Composition Instructor's Survival Guide Brock Dethier, 1999 The Composition Instructor's Survival Guide is written for the most overlooked segment of today's English departments the more than forty thousand instructors who do the actual composition teaching most of them for low pay no benefits no hope of tenure It is the first book to speak for this largely silent group to voice the anger composition instructors feel at their treatment to articulate the reasons why composition courses and teachers deserve more respect and most important to enumerate what composition instructors can do to make their jobs easier and more pleasurable

Representations LuMing Mao, Morris Young, 2008-11-28 As the essays collectively argue Asian American rhetoric not only reflects and responds to existing social and cultural conditions and practices but also interacts with and influences such conditions and practices In the process it becomes a rhetoric of becoming that always negotiates with adjusts to and yields an imagined identity and agency that is Asian American History, Reflection, and Narrative Mary Rosner, Beth Boehm, Debra Journet, 1999-12-21 On October 9 12 1996 over 400 scholars researchers and teachers gathered at the University of Louisville for the first Thomas R Watson Conference in Rhetoric and Composition History Reflection and Narrative combines oral histories and reflections collected from the featured speakers at the Conference scholars teachers and researchers whose work has been among the most influential in composition s development with critical perspectives on the period from 1963 to 1983 by another generation of scholars many of whom will play an important role in defining composition s future This book offers an important contribution to our ongoing understanding of how composition came to be the profession it is how the present builds on the past and how the present may challenge the future

Personal Effects Deborah Holdstein, David Bleich, 2002 Holdstein and Bleich compile a volume that cuts across the grain of current orthodoxy These editors and contributors argue that it is fundamental in humanistic scholarship to take account of the personal and collective experiences of scholars researchers critics and teachers They contend that humanistic inquiry cannot develop successfully at this time without reference to the varieties of subjective inter subjective and collective experience of teachers and researchers In composition studies they point out an important strand of theory has continuously mined the personal experience of individual writers where they stand even in a destabilised sense of that idea Such substantive accounts of the inner academic life provide appropriate and rich contexts for further study and analysis With this volume then these scholars move us to explore the intersections of the social with subjectivity with voice ideology and culture and to consider the roles of these in the work of academics who study writing and literature Taken together the essays in this collection carry forward the idea that the personal the candidly subjective and inter subjective must be part of the subject of study in humanities scholarship They propose an understanding of the personal in scholarship that is more helpful because more clearly anchored in human experience

Tactics of Hope Paula Mathieu, 2005 Institutions of higher learning seem traditionally isolated from the realities of the neighborhoods around them But increasingly colleges and universities have thrown open their gates and made a public turn toward school community partnerships bringing literacy activities to the streets and service learning opportunities to faculty staff and student volunteers Paula Mathieu is one such faculty volunteer and in Tactics of Hope she examines the workings behind the public turn in composition studies at several institutions Recounting various types of initiatives she describes how these ideas for outreach were received by both local residents and members of the campus and she outlines how each side worked together to relieve town gown tensions More important Mathieu examines why a tactical not strategic approach to outreach provides the most flexibility for all involved and creates the best opportunities for real learning and deeper interaction between volunteers and their community Outside the dormitories the classrooms and the gates of every university live people who can benefit from public academic partnerships And on the inside of those very same structures are people who can benefit equally Read Tactics of Hope and discover ideas and tactics for tapping the transformative power of learning on and from the streets

Writing in the Center Irene L. Clark,1998 Out of Style Paul Butler,2008-01-31 Paul Butler applauds the emerging interest in the study of style among scholars of rhetoric and composition arguing that the loss of stylistics from composition in recent decades left it alive only in the popular imagination as a set of grammar conventions Butler s goal in Out of Style is to articulate style as a vital and productive source of invention and to redefine its importance for current research theory and pedagogy Scholars in composition know that the ideas about writing most common in the discourse of public intellectuals are egregiously backward Without a vital approach to stylistics Butler argues writing studies will never dislodge the controlling fantasies of self authorized pundits in the nation s intellectual press Rhetoric and composition must answer with a public discourse that is responsive to readers ongoing interest in style but is also grounded in composition theory
