Crawling Horror D. Butcher, 2021-06 The insect kingdom has finally come to seek retribution for humankind s negligence Never has a creature been so topical with headlines warning of the mosquito bearing viruses fire ants destroying power sources invasive yellow ladybirds or an ecological insect apocalypse that threatens the very balance of our natural world With growing concerns about global warming pesticides and genetically modified crops Eco Gothic is moving to the fore in modern scholarship and this collection allows readers to be a fly on the wall to some of the creepiest and crawliest accounts of insectoid horror Publisher Isles of the Sea, Young America Homeward Bound: A Story of Travel and Adventure Oliver Optic, 1908-01-01 Isles of the Sea is the sixth and last volume of the second series of Young America Abroad and contains the history of the academy squadron during its voyage homeward bound across the Atlantic The title of the book Isles of the Sea indicates the character of the foreign travel in which the students of the institution were engaged and in the pursuit of knowledge they visit the Madeira Islands the Canaries the Azores the Bermudas and one vessel of the fleet extends its cruise to the Cape Verd Islands As in its predecessors the professor of geography and history has something to say about each of the islands visited and the surgeon and sanitary officer continues to enlighten the young gentlemen who seek his companionship in their rambles on shore The field of geography and history is not so extensive as in the preceding volumes of the series and for this reason the story occupies a larger place in the book Of the story Mr Tom Speers is the central figure or at least one of the most prominent characters Possibly he may be deemed a rather eccentric character for one under age but as the author has so often expressed himself before it does not so much matter what else a young man may be if he only has high aims and a resolute purpose to carry out his ideal of what is noble good and true Tom is a high toned young man as are all the other characters with whom the young reader is at all likely to sympathize and in whose fortunes he is most certain to be interested As to the innate probability of a few of the leading incidents they are suggested by actual occurrences in maritime history which may be recalled by those who have kept themselves familiar with the subject In regard to the long search of the Ville d Angers for the academy squadron which extended nearly across the Atlantic the recorded experience of those who have traversed the ocean on similar ventures shows how difficult it is away from the telegraph and the ship news for one vessel to find another The first volume of the first series of Young America Abroad was published in 1866 by the publishers whose imprint is on the present and last of the series It is therefore eleven years that the author has been engaged in this pleasing work These books have been received with a degree of favor which the writer is proud and happy to acknowledge and for which he returns his sincere thanks He is especially grateful that his life has been spared to complete the work begun and every year has increased his interest in the host of young friends to whom these books have introduced him in all parts of the country He regrets that in this particular field of travel and adventure his task has reached its conclusion He has crossed the Atlantic four times and travelled in every country of Europe in preparing himself for the work and the pleasant memories of the lonely ocean and the far distant lands he has visited will always be retained and cherished in their association with the multitude of young people in whose delightful service he voyaged and travelled
