The Shared Horizon:

History as a Science and the System of the Sciences Thomas M. Seebohm, 2015-04-09 This volume goes beyond presently available phenomenological analyses based on the structures and constitution of the lifeworld. It shows how the science of history is the mediator between the human and the natural sciences. It demonstrates that the distinction between interpretation and explanation does not imply a strict separation of the natural and the human sciences. Finally, it shows that the natural sciences and technology are inseparable but that technology is one-sidedly founded in pre-scientific encounters with reality in the lifeworld. In positivism, the natural sciences are sciences because they offer causal explanations testable in experiments, and the humanities are human sciences only if they use methods of the natural sciences. For epistemologists following Dilthey, the human sciences presuppose interpretation, and the human and natural sciences must be separated. There is phenomenology interested in psychology and the social sciences that distinguish the natural and the human sciences, but little can be found about the historical human sciences. This volume fills the gap by presenting analyses of the material foundations of the understanding of expressions of other persons and of primordial recollections and expectations, founding explicit expectations and predictions in the lifeworld. Next, it shows on the basis of history as applying philological methods in interpretations of sources, the role of a universal spatio-temporal framework for reconstructions and causal explanations of what has really happened.

Our Politics, Our Selves? Peter Digeser, 1995-04-17 Is statecraft soulcraft? Should we look to our souls and selves in assessing the quality of our politics? Is it the business of politics to cultivate shape or structure our internal lives? Summarizing and answering the major theoretical positions on these issues, Peter Digeser formulates a qualified permission to protect or encourage particular forms of human identity. Public discourse on politics should not preclude talk about the role of reason in our souls or the importance of wholeness and community to our selves or the significance of autonomy for individuals. However, those who seek to place only their own conception of the self or soul within the reach of politics are as mistaken as those who would completely preclude such matters from the political realm. In proposing this view, Digeser responds to communitarians, classical political rationalists, and genealogists who argue that liberal culture fragments, debases, or normalizes our selves. He also critically analyzes perfectionist liberals who justify liberalism by virtue of its ability to cultivate autonomy and authenticity, as well as liberal neutralists who wish to avoid altogether the problem of selfcraft. All these he argues fall short in some way in defining the extent to which politics should be concerned with the self.

The Loss and Recovery of Transcendence John C. Robertson, 1995-01-01 This long-standing series provides the guild of religion scholars a venue for publishing aimed primarily at colleagues. Interreligious Learning Didier Pollefeyt, 2007 The growth of secularisation pluralism and globalisation have placed the West s traditional monoreligious education under pressure Christianity no longer possesses a privileged position in Western Europe Since the 1970 s a number of scholars have been trying to formulate an answer to this question of multireligiosity by developing a multireligious concept of religious education As both a critique on and alternative for the multireligious model scholars in the 1990s developed the interreligious model of religious education This approach distinguishes itself from monoreligious pedagogy through acknowledging plurality among the pupils as both a part of departure and as a possible end result of religious education Moreover it openly approaches the plurality of religions and worldviews as a learning opportunity Religious education thus becomes a place of encounter and dialogue between different religious convictions Interreligious learning further distinguishes itself from the multireligious model by overcoming a purely objective representation of the multitude of religions In the interreligious model students are not only informed but are introduced to the cognitive and value commitments underlying the different religions giving them the opportunity to enrich and develop their own personal religious identity The teacher takes an explicit and particular religious Christian standpoint but also tries to bring in other committed religious and philosophical voices The interreligious model aims to teach students that holding a proper religious identity while having an openness to the religious other is not necessarily self contradictory What is more that authentic religiosity is able to welcome the other in his her vulnerability and strength as a witness to God In this volume scholars from various disciplines theology pedagogy psychology and ethics and from different religious backgrounds Jews Christians and Muslims face up to a total of ten challenges related to interreligious learning Challenges that may act as obstacles to the acceptance of this possible new paradigm for religious education

The Essential Difference Naomi Schor, Elizabeth Weed, 1994-12-22 What is essentialism What is anti essentialism The Essential Difference attempts to answer questions at the heart of current feminist theory and cultural study The book deals with origins and contexts of the debate relationships between essentialism anti essentialism and the power of language reasons for the demonization of essentialism within the academy the relationship between essentialism and Third World studies The essays also speculate about whether there can be an anti essentialist feminism whether there can in fact be a feminist politics that dispenses with the notion of Woman This long awaited volume questions the bases of feminism itself The contributors are Teresa de Lauretis Diana Fuss Elizabeth Grosz Luce Irigaray Leslie Wahl Rabine Ellen Rooney Robert Scholes Naomi Schor and Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak

Southern Review, 1983 Real Sofistikashun Tony Hoagland, 2006-09-19 A controversial collection of essays on poetry offering analyses of poetry craft with insightful essays on poets ranging from Robert Pinsky to Louise Gluck

Derrida and Legal Philosophy Peter Goodrich, 2008-10-02 Among the last generation of continental philosophers Derrida stands out as the most jurisprudential of thinkers His early work on literary texts was already focused on laws of genre on being before the law and upon the legality of speech acts His later work on the violent foundations of authority and on the force of law further propelled deconstruction into legal studies This volume traces the path of Derrida s original and provocative legal insights and also maps the geographical and jurisdictional passages of his ideas
