sort of perceived populist mandate In Law from Below Elisabeth Rain Kincaid argues that the theology of the early modern legal theorist and theologian Francisco Suarez SJ may be successfully retrieved to provide a constructive model of legal engagement for Christians today Suarez's theology was developed to combat an authoritarian view of law suggesting that communities may work to change law from the ground up as they function within the legal system not just outside it Law from Below suggests that Suarez's theory of law provides a theologically robust way to mount a counter narrative to contemporary authoritarian theories of law while still acknowledging the good in the rule of law and its imposition by a legislative authority Suarez acknowledges the crucial contribution of citizens to improving law's moral content without removing the importance of law's own authority or the role of the lawgiver Law from Below argues that the dialogue between legislators and the community provides Christian activists with a range of options for constructively engaging with law in order to have a positive impact on society
