

moment. As the battle between two sides progresses, the composition of the black drop is changing and its viscosity is increasing. The speed with which the soda cell through its allotted time depends on the temperature of the reacting ions. At about 50 degrees, Fahrenheit the mortal struggle lasts about 45 minutes and then the imitation cell becomes quiet and quiet, and has changed an exciting "creature" to a little soap.

OTHER forces besides those of osmotic pressure come into play in the lives of his colpoids, Professor Herrera explains, and these are the equal forces of surface tension and electrical charges in the drops which have a tendency to become their like. Surface tension tends to make the spheroidal, but the currents caused by the chemical interchange of ions are order to go further, which Professor Herrera says are antagonistic to the living cells, he suggests an experiment for the biologist to perform which is neglected in the field. He sets an artificial imitation of a soda solution might be suggested. The physical forces and electrical properties of the reacting bodies then become enormous. Professor Herrera's cell of so-called "artificial" creature, he has mimicked many other structures by means of other chemical substances. Organic molecules, albumin and fats, but he discovered that his best results were obtained when certain mineral imceeded in obtaining in his microscope slide structures resembling isolated cells, spores, streptococcus chains, bacteria, and protoplasm.

One of his simplest methods of preparing a pseudo-protoplasm in his laboratory today is by sprinkling a bit of Merck's chemically prepared powdered egg albumin upon a drop of nitric acid on a microscope slide. Remarkably realistic structures arise which appear almost identical with the structure of living protoplasm. By varying the acid, Professor Herrera can vary the type of protoplasmic structure.

"These various experiments are not without biological significance," Pro-

get its food. In the arm-like extensions of black soda drop which it uses to vampire grip on its rivals, Professor Herrera sees the counterparts of pseudopods of the living amoeba in the brook. And in the pseudopods' behavior of the organism becomes and more complicated, the physical and chemical reactions come so confused with what are instincts, at the bottom of which must lie, that they are completely of.

the scale of life is ascended and the behavior of the organism becomes and more complicated, the physical and chemical reactions come so confused with what are instincts, at the bottom of which must lie, that they are completely of.

The struggles of a man to get by robbing a bank or getting in another factory are as much the result of internal chemical reactions as the behavior of the caterpillar or the hydra in the brook or the amoeba in the sunny pool, or the black drop skipping about in the microscope, Professor Herrera Professor Herrera's conclusion is the result of 30 years' work in the field of colloid chemistry, which is but a tiny part of the vast field of hitherto unexplored phenomena which is the result of the combination of various parts of the scientific world.

the two must have much in common. And I believe the parallelism exists from the chemical viewpoint. The two things are the one which holds the molecules in living organisms, and the other, which is a hard, crystalline substance, are hardly conceivable in the physical world. It is not to be had to have proved that such experiments that such living things on earth have that I have at least obtained evidence in that direction.

"The combinations of solutions now produced in my laboratory," Professor Herrera says. He sees an inescapable parallel with structures in real life. The amoeba moves about in its pool of water by the streaming of its body substances, and

Writing For Their Lives:

Writing the Lives of Writers Warwick Gould, T. Staley, 1998-07-15 Writing the Lives of Writers ponders that strange ventriloquized dialogue between biographers and their subjects a dialogue all the stranger when the subject is a writer It contains 22 essays by internationally distinguished scholars and biographers including Martin C Battestin Isobel Grundy John Haffenden Hermione Lee Lawrence Lipking Ray Monk Hazel Rowley Max Saunders Martin Stannard and John Worthen They tackle the lives of Chaucer Tyndale More Fielding and Lady Mary Wortley Montagu Wordsworth Henry James Ford Madox Ford Yeats Lawrence Dorothy Richardson Virginia Woolf Malcolm Lowry F R Leavis Richard Wright and Brian Penton

Writing the Lives of People and Things, AD 500-1700 Robert F.W. Smith, Gemma L. Watson, 2017-05-15 Historical biography has a mixed reputation at its best it can reveal much not only about an individual but the wider context of their life and society at worst it can result in a narrowly focused work of hagiography or condemnation Yet in spite of its sometimes inferior status amongst academics biography has remained a popular genre and in recent years has developed into new and intriguing areas As the essays in this volume reveal scholars from an array of different disciplines have embraced what biography can offer them expanding the remit of biography from people to things tracing the life of their chosen object from creation to use to disposal to rediscovery The increasing concern with the physicality of manuscripts and books has also meant an awareness of and interest in the lives of these forms of material culture Historians have also become increasingly interested in groups of individuals resulting in prosopographical studies A book on the diversity of biography is therefore very timely exploring the multi disciplinary application of historical biography in the period 500 1700 It presents fourteen case studies offering new approaches to historical biography written by early career researchers from backgrounds in archaeology English art architectural history and history demonstrating different approaches and techniques Overall the collection is a strong and united statement by a group of early career researchers who insist on the vitality of biography as a central concern of historians across the disciplines of the humanities Contributors believe that the life is a fundamental medium of study for the medieval and early modern periods and thus bolsters the move back towards biography as a primary tool of medieval and early modern scholars as well as a tool for future research for humanities scholars interested in biography
