Writing And Madness:

Writing and Madness Shoshana Felman, Martha Noel Evans, 2003 This is the author's most influential work of literary theory and criticism in which she explores the relations between literature philosophy and psychoanalysis Writing and Madness Shoshana Felman, 2022 Writing and Madness is Shoshana Felman's most influential work of literary theory and criticism Exploring the relations between literature philosophy and psychoanalysis through brilliant studies of Balzac Nerval Flaubert and James as well as Lacan Foucault and Derrida this book seeks the specificity of literature in its relation to what culture excludes under the label madness Why and how do literary writers reclaim the discourse of the madman and how does this reclaiming reveal something essential about the relation between literature and power as well as between literature and knowledge Every literary text continues to communicate with madness with what has been excluded decreed abnormal unacceptable or senseless by dramatizing a dynamically revitalized relation between sense and nonsense reason and unreason the readable and the unreadable This revelation of the irreducibility of the relation between the readable and the unreadable constitutes what the author calls la chose littéraire the literary thing Writing and Madness Shoshana Felman, 1985

Writing and Madness Shoshana Felman, 2003 This is the author's most influential work of literary theory and criticism in which she explores the relations between literature philosophy and psychoanalysis Writing Women's Madness, 1845-1914 Mary Chapman, 2025-08-25 Taking an interdisciplinary approach this book bridges literary studies and the history of medicine to offer a unique perspective on female mental illness in the nineteenth century Demonstrating the importance of writing to psychiatric practice during this period the book moves forward from previous asylum focused scholarship to uncover how written discourse was integral to the creation and development of theories about the female mind During the Victorian era cultural beliefs about femininity combined with an emerging physiological understanding of mental illness to produce a concept of female madness centred on reproductive biology Exploring the textuality of clinical literature and periodicals the book shows how their genre form language and readership shaped the development of gendered psychiatric theory Covering nineteenth century print culture a range of popular and specialist periodicals and delving into little explored sources in the history of psychiatry the book examines key topics of interest such as the mind sciences in the popular press the publishing history of psychiatric textbooks patient literature in asylum periodicals and the early treatment of mental illness at the turn of the twentieth century The book will appeal to researchers working in the fields of periodical studies women's history and the history of psychiatry as well as scholars interested in the medical humanities more broadly Bureaucratic Muse Ethan Knapp, 2010-11-01 Writing Madness, Writing Normalcy Lisa Spieker, 2021-05-26 What does it mean to be mad in contemporary American society? How do we categorize people's reactions to extreme pressures, trauma, loneliness, and serious mental illness? Importantly, who gets to determine these classifications and why? This book seeks to answer these questions through studying an increasingly popular media genre: memoirs of people with mental illnesses. Memoirs like the ones examined in this book often respond to stigmatizing tropes about the mad in popular culture and engage with concepts in mental health activism and research. This study breaks new academic ground and argues that the featured texts rethink the possibilities of community building and stigma politics. Drawing on literary analysis and sociological concepts, it understands these memoirs as complex at times even contradictory approaches to activism.

Liminal Postmodernisms, 1994 Boundaries in Medieval Romance Neil Cartlidge, 2008 Medieval romance frequently and perhaps characteristically capitalises on the dramatic and suggestive possibilities implicit in boundaries: not only the geographical, political, and cultural frontiers that medieval romances imagine and imply, but also more metaphorical demarcations. It is these boundaries as they appear in insular romances circulating in English and French which the essays in this volume address. They include the boundary between reality and fictionality, boundaries between different literary traditions, modes, and cultures, and boundaries between different kinds of experience or perception, especially the altered states associated with sickness, magic, the supernatural, or the divine. Precarious Writing of Ann Quin Nonia Williams, 2023-05-19 Ann Quin's innovative, versatile oeuvre made a vital contribution to 1960s and 70s British experimental writing. While contemporaries praised her vivid and energetic prose, a sustained and in-depth study of Quin has so far been absent from scholarly reassessment of this literary era. As the first comprehensive appraisal of her writing and life, this book redresses that critical neglect, aims to recuperate Quin as a key female experimental writer of the twentieth century, and shows how the precarious possibility of her writing is its essential attribute and demonstrates the lasting importance of her work. Its combination of scholarly analysis and archival expertise investigates her life, writing, and forms of experimentation to convey precisely what is striking and significant about Quin. Lucid Interval George MacLennan, 1992 MacLennan approaches the eight writers from a broadly sociohistorical viewpoint and takes into account relevant biographical and medical evidence where available, examining their situations as revealed or mediated by their writings. Through a series of detailed analyses, he argues that these writings bear witness to a progressively increasing degree of psychological inwardness in Western culture. This is a process that affects both how madness is experienced by the individual and how it is expressed in subjective writing. By the late eighteenth century, madness becomes for a significant number of writers and artists an intimately interiorized condition, one which implicates their entire affective life. It is this subjectivized and existential madness that, in the Romantic period and subsequently, has been taken to express an inner truth in an increasingly secularized and alienating state of society In taking these developments into account Lucid Interval is able to arrive at a fresh understanding of the appearance in the modern period of such figures as Clare and de Nerval writers who suffer madness as an inner subjective catastrophe but who in the midst of that experience are able to explore it creatively so producing a literature of madness which is a new phenomenon in itself and which sets a troubling precedent for modern culture

BOOK JACKET Beyond Écriture Féminine Cathy Helen Wardle,2007 Beyond Écriture féminine is the first book to be published exploring the work of the contemporary French author Jeanne Hyvrard 1945 from her early novels of the 1970s up to some of her most recent texts Moving critical accounts of Hyvrard beyond a focus upon écriture féminine it identifies the patterns though which her writing repeats and transforms creation mythology her own oeuvre and her own life examining how intertextual repetitions bind her work together into a complex and ever expanding web of allusions and resonances which engages the reader in a process of constant re interpretation challenging notions of linearity and reflecting the chaotic reality of life in the Hyvrardian world

BOOK JACKET Essays and Essay-writing William Maddux Tanner,1917 Cultural Constructions of Madness in Eighteenth-Century Writing A. Ingram,M. Faubert,2004-11-30 Cultural Constructions of Madness in the Eighteenth Century deals with the mis representation of insanity through a substantial range of literary forms and figures from across the eighteenth century and beyond Chapters cover the representation distortion sentimentalization and elevation of insanity and such associated issues as gender personal identity and performance in some of the best as well as some of the least known writers of the period A selection of visual material including works by Hogarth Rowlandson and Gillray is also discussed While primarily adopting a literary focus the work is informed throughout by an alertness to significant issues of medical and psychiatric history
