presents a series of case studies some based on pathfinding research and others on provocative analysis that correct misinformation clouding the public's understanding of the Middle East. He also offers a forensic exploration of how misinformation arises and becomes fact. The book is divided into five themes: Orientalism and Middle Eastern studies, a prime casualty of the culture wars; Islamism, massively misrepresented by apologists; Arab politics, a generator of disappointing surprises; Israeli history, manipulated by reckless revisionists; and American Jews and Israel, the subject of irrational fantasies. Kramer shows how error permeates the debate over each of these themes, creating distorted images that cause policy failures. Kramer approaches questions in the spirit of a relentless fact checker: Did Israeli troops massacre Palestinian Arabs in Lydda in July 1948? Was the bestseller Exodus hatched by an advertising executive? Did Martin Luther King Jr. describe anti-Zionism as antisemitism? Did a major post-9/11 documentary film deliberately distort the history of Islam? Did Israel push the United States into the Iraq War? Kramer also questions paradigms: the Arab Spring, the map of the Middle East, and linkage. Along the way, he amasses new evidence, exposes carelessness, and provides definitive answers.

In the Path of God Daniel Pipes, Americans' awareness of Islam and Muslims rose to seemingly unprecedented heights in the immediate aftermath of September 11, 2001, but this is not the first time they have dominated American public life. Once before, during the period of the Iranian revolution and hostage crisis of 1979 to 1981, Americans found themselves targeted as a consequence of a militant interpretation of Islam. Daniel Pipes wrote In the Path of God in response to those events and the heightened interest in Islam they generated. His objective was to present an overview of the connection between Islam and political power through history in a way that would explain the origins of hostility to Americans and the West. Its relevance to our understanding of contemporary events is self-evident. Muslim antagonism toward the West is deeply rooted in historical experience. In premodern times, the Islamic world enjoyed great success, being on the whole more powerful and wealthier than their neighbors. About two hundred years ago, a crisis developed as Muslims became aware of the West's overwhelming force and economic might. While they might have found these elements attractive, Muslims found European culture largely alien and distasteful. The resulting resistance to Westernization by Muslims has deep roots, has been more persistent than that of other peoples, and goes far to explain the deep Muslim reluctance to accept modern ways. In short, Muslims saw what the West had and wanted it too, but they rejected the methods necessary to achieve this. This, the Muslim trauma, has only worsened over the years. Scholarly, far-ranging, and thoughtful, the debate is interesting, and Pipes has made a stimulating contribution to it. The New Republic Brilliantly authoritative, demonstrates encyclopedic knowledge of Muslim intellectual history. Few other writers have explained so lucidly such complex developments in Muslim history. The Washington Post He has resisted a widespread tendency to translate Muslim self expression into social science jargon as unintelligible as any mosque harangue His unadorned interpretation strikes a judicious balance between faithfulness to sources and clarity of presentation The American Spectator Daniel Pipes is director of the Middle East Forum and a columnist for the New York Post and the Jerusalem Post Among his books are The Long Shadow Culture and Politics in the Middle East published by Transaction Greater Syria The History of an Ambition Friendly Tyrants An American Dilemma and The Rushdie Affair The Novel the Aftermath and the West The New Republic Herbert David Croly,1983 Encounter ,1984 Access ,1984 The World & I ,1988 The Gentleman's Magazine ,1895 Commentary ,1985 The Cumulative Book Index ,1985 A world list of books in the English language The Earth and Its Inhabitants: North-west Africa Elisée Reclus,1876 On Cassette ,1991 Bulletin Geographical Society of Philadelphia,1924
