Linguistics and Language Behavior Abstracts ,2009-04 Power in the EFL Classroom Phyllis Wachob,2009 oeCritical pedagogy is not a set of ideas but a way of doing TM learning and teaching Canagarajah 2005 This definition puts CP squarely in the classroom and leads us to view how teachers interact with students and how students treat one another while negotiating institutional and societal expectations. The chapters in the book use a variety of methods to address questions of power within educational institutions from classrooms to the ministries of education. All the contributors are or have been teachers in the Middle East from Egypt to Iran. Their nationalities range from Egyptian to American, Canadian, British, Tunisian, and Iranian. Ten of the contributors are women. All have conducted research and/or invited participation from among students and fellow teachers to explore issues of Critical Pedagogy from various perspectives. The question of physical space relates to power but is also related to linguistic space; student choice is not only related to linguistic space but also to motivation and thus empowerment. Changing teachers' beliefs leads to empowerment for teachers but also empowerment for students. Educational policy that recognizes social and personal identity reflects back to personal motivation. These studies meet and mesh, complement and sometimes take different viewpoints. However, all the studies embrace the concept that we must respect and nurture the human in our students; that we as teachers are the front line as enablers of our students' empowerment. If we do not provide the space and honor their dignity, our students cannot claim and embrace their power.

Research on ESL in U.S. Community Colleges. Kathleen M. Bailey, Maricel Guiao Santos, 2009. As enrollment figures for ESL and former ESL students in higher education continue to grow, it's necessary for educators who work with these students to reflect on current practices, develop new understandings, and take action when change is warranted. This collection explores some of the most important challenges for English for Academic Purposes (EAP) educators in a crucial area of U.S. higher education: community colleges. Community college mission statements generally feature a strong commitment to meeting local needs. The studies presented in this book serve to illustrate community connections and the social implications of them. Readers will gain insight into relevant practice while learning from studies that can serve as a basis for additional research. The chapters are organized according to five themes: curricula, technology, retention and persistence, identity, and defining and assessing success areas that all ESL programs in community colleges are struggling to reform. Each part features a sampling of research combined with varied perspectives on each topic.
