A dramatic story of shipwreck and rescue by

Cassie Brown

February 19, 1942:
Three ships ran aground off Newfoundland during storm yesterday. Two sank, 203 American sailors were lost...

DOUBLEDAY

On the main deck, all of the galley deck, Harry Eger, W. G. Harris, and others had been arguing about the best way to get to the beach. It was obvious to them that they weren't a life-and-death struggle...

"Don't do it," Eger said.
"Can do it," W. G. insisted.
"The water is too cold and rough, you'll never make it."

"Look at it," Eger roared. "Look at the waves breaking on the cliffs. You'll never make it."
Harris would not listen. He had made up his mind and before anyone could stop him, he jumped over the side.

Eger was stunned. He watched the water, but saw no sign of his friend. A few minutes followed. W. G. and Harris returned toward the beach, but a wave took them toward the oil slick, where they disappeared from view. Then, before his horrified eyes, they were lifted on the crest of a great wave and capped by the heavy rain falling on their heads. Eger had forgotten to look at the sea. He had been too busy watching Harris. Just like that, W. G. was dead.
