Victorian Advertisements:

The Commodity Culture of Victorian England Thomas Richards, 1990 This provocative and theoretically sophisticated book reveals how capitalism produced and sustained a culture of its own in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Richards provides a valuable account of the interaction between cultural and business development in Victorian England by focusing on the evolution of advertising Through an examination of five case studies ranging from how advertisers employed images of the Crystal Palace Exhibition of 1851 to their use of images of women just before WWI he argues that the British developed a new type of culture in the mid and late 19th century a new way of thinking and living increasingly based upon the possession of material goods commodities Revising the findings of some earlier scholars Richards shows that cultural forms of consumerism came into being well before the consumer economy did The 50 well reproduced advertising images greatly enhance the value of this study M Blackford Choice

Literary Advertising and the Shaping of British Romanticism Nicholas Mason, 2013-10 Important revisions to the history of advertising and its connection to Romantic era literature Outstanding Academic Title Choice Literary Advertising and the Shaping of British Romanticism investigates the entwined histories of the advertising industry and the gradual commodification of literature over the course of the Romantic Century 1750 1850 In this engaging and detailed study Nicholas Mason argues that the seemingly antagonistic arenas of marketing and literature share a common genealogy and in many instances even a symbiotic relationship Drawing from archival materials such as publishers account books merchants trade cards and authors letters Mason traces the beginnings of many familiar modern advertising methods including product placement limited time offers and journalistic puffery to the British book trade during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries Until now Romantic scholars have not fully recognized advertising's cultural significance or the importance of this period in the origins of modern advertising. Mason explores Lord Byron's appropriation of branding, Letitia Elizabeth Landon's experiments in visual marketing and late Romantic debates over advertising's claim to be a new branch of the literary arts. Mason uses the antics of Romantic era advertising to illustrate the profound implications of commercial modernity both in economic practices governing the book trade and more broadly in the development of the modern idea of literature.

The Making of English Popular Culture John Storey, 2016-05-20

The Making of English Popular Culture provides an account of the making of popular culture in the nineteenth century. While a form of what we might describe as popular culture existed before this period, John Storey has assembled a collection that demonstrates how what we now think of as popular culture first emerged as a result of the enormous changes that accompanied the industrial revolution. Particularly significant are the technological changes that made the production of new forms of culture possible and the concentration of people in urban areas that created significant audiences for this new culture. Consisting of fourteen original chapters that cover diverse topics ranging from seaside holidays and the invention of Christmas tradition to advertising music and popular fiction, the collection aims to enhance our understanding of the relationship between culture and power as explored through areas such as race, ethnicity, class, sexuality, and gender. It also aims to encourage within cultural studies a renewed historical sense when engaging critically with popular culture by exploring the historical conditions surrounding the existence of popular texts and practices. Written in a highly accessible style, The Making of English Popular Culture is an ideal text for undergraduates studying cultural and media studies, literary studies, cultural history, and visual culture.

Consuming Angels Lori Anne Loeb, 1994-10-13

Timid and retiring, the Victorian housewife was an angel in the house or so says the stereotype. But when this angel picked up a popular magazine, The Lady for instance, she saw in its advertisements images of Grecian goddesses, women warriors, queens, actresses, adventurers. These arrestingly sexual and surprisingly powerful images are the subject of Consuming Angels, a major examination of how Victorian ads shaped social values. Stylishly written and featuring 73 reproductions, this book shows how ads used the hedonistic aspects of Victorian culture to sell their wares, glorified consumerism, and mythologized the middle class life. Images of aggressive women, Loeb shows, played well to both men and women. And ultimately, these ads helped usher in the twentieth century with the creation of a new community, the community of consumers.
