Surface Architecture:

Surface Architecture David Leatherbarrow, Mohsen Mostafavi, 2005-02-11 A study of the building surface architecture as primary instrument of identity and engagement with its surroundings. Visually many contemporary buildings either reflect their systems of production or recollect earlier styles and motifs. This division between production and representation is in some ways an extension of that between modernity and tradition. In this book David Leatherbarrow and Mohsen Mostafavi explore ways that design can take advantage of production methods such that architecture is neither independent of nor dominated by technology. Leatherbarrow and Mostafavi begin with the theoretical and practical isolation of the building surface as the subject of architectural design. The autonomy of the surface, the free facade, presumes a distinction between the structural and nonstructural elements of the building between the frame and the cladding. Once the skin of the building became independent of its structure it could just as well hang like a curtain or like clothing. The focus of the relationship between structure and skin is the architectural surface. In tracing the handling of this surface the authors examine both contemporary buildings and those of the recent past. Architects discussed include Albert Kahn, Ludwig Mies van der Rohe, Alison and Peter Smithson, Alejandro de la Sota, Robert Venturi, Jacques Herzog and Pierre de Meuron. The properties of a building's surface, whether it is made of concrete, metal, glass, or other materials, are not merely superficial; they construct the spatial effects by which architecture communicates. Through its surfaces a building declares both its autonomy and its participation in its surroundings.

The Routledge Companion to Criticality in Art, Architecture, and Design Chris Brisbin, Myra Thiessen, 2018-10-03 The Routledge Companion to Criticality in Art, Architecture and Design presents an in-depth exploration of criticism and criticality in theory and practice across the disciplines of art, architecture, and design. Professional criticism is a vital part of understanding the cultural significance of designed objects and environments that we engage with on a daily basis, yet there is evidence to show that this practice is changing. This edited volume investigates how practitioners, researchers, educators, and professionals engage with, think about, and value the practice of critique. With contributions from a multi-disciplinary authorship from nine countries (the UK, USA, Australia, India, Netherlands, Switzerland, South Africa, Belgium, and Denmark), this companion provides a wide range of leading perspectives evaluating the landscape of criticality and how it is being shaped by technological and social advances. Illustrated with over 60 black and white images and structured into five sections, The Routledge Companion to Criticality in Art, Architecture and Design is a comprehensive volume for researchers, educators, and students exploring the changing role of criticism through interdisciplinary perspectives.
