The Benign Humorists:

The Benign Humorists Richard S. Carlson, 1975 The Comedy of Entropy Patrick O'Neill, 1990-12-15 Entropic comedy is the phrase coined by Patrick O'Neill in this study to identify a particular mode of twentieth century narrative that is not generally recognized. He describes it as the narrative expression of forms of decentred humour or what might more loosely be called black humour. O'Neill begins his investigation by examining the rise of an essentially new form of humour over the last three hundred years or so in the context of a rapid decay of confidence in traditional authoritative value systems. O'Neill analyses the resulting reorganization of the spectrum of humour and examines the implications of this for the ways in which we read texts and the world we live in. He then turns from intellectual history to narratology and considers the relationship in theoretical terms of humour play and narrative as systems of discourse and the role of the reader as a textualizing agent. Finally he considers some dozen twentieth century narratives in French, German and English with occasional reference to other literatures in the context of those historical and theoretical concerns. Authors of the texts analysed include Camus, Sartre and Robbe-Grillet in French; Heller, Beckett, Pynchon, Nabokov and Joyce in English; Grass, Kafka and Handke in German. The analyses proceed along lines suggested by structuralist, semiotic and post-structuralist narrative and literary theory. From his analyses of these works, O'Neill concludes they illustrate in narrative terms a mode of modern writing definable as entropic comedy and he develops a taxonomy of the mode.

The Senses of Humor Daniel Wickberg, 2015-06-18 Why do modern Americans believe in something called a sense of humor and how did they come to that belief? Daniel Wickberg traces the cultural history of the concept from its British origins as a way to explore new conceptions of the self and social order in modern America. More than simply the history of an idea, Wickberg's study provides new insights into a peculiarly modern cultural sensibility. The expression sense of humor was first coined in the 1840s and the idea that such a sense was a personality trait to be valued developed only in the 1870s. What is the relationship between Medieval humoral medicine and this distinctively modern idea of the sense of humor? What has it meant in the past 125 years to declare that someone lacks a sense of humor? How is the joke as a twentieth century quasi-literary form different from the traditional folktale? Wickberg addresses these questions among others using the history of ideas to throw new light on the way contemporary Americans think and speak. The context of Wickberg's analysis is Anglo-American; the specifically British meanings of humor and laughter from the sixteenth century forward provide the framework for understanding American cultural values in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. The genealogy of the sense of humor is like the study of keywords: an avenue into a significant aspect of the cultural history of modernity. Drawing on a wide range of sources and disciplinary perspectives, Wickberg's analysis challenges many of the prevailing views of modern American culture and suggests a new model for cultural historians.

Humorist Tales Samuel Griswold Goodrich, 1849 Migrant Song Teresa McKenna, 2010-07-05 Migration and continuity have shaped both the Chicano people and their oral and written literature. In this pathfinding study of Chicano literature Teresa McKenna specifically explores how these works arise out of social political and psychological conflict and how the development of Chicano literature is inextricably embedded in this fact McKenna begins by appraising the evolution of Chicano literature from oral forms including the important role of the corrido in the development of Chicano poetry In subsequent chapters she examines the works of Richard Rodriguez and Rolando Hinojosa She also devotes a chapter to the development of the Chicana voice in Chicano literature Her epilogue considers the parallel development of Chicano literary theory and discusses some possible directions for research In McKenna s own words I believe that the future of this literature as that of all literatures by people of color in the United States rests largely on its being effectively introduced into the curricula at all levels as well as its entrance into the critical consciousness of literary theory This book will be an important step in that process

Love's labours lost. Comedy of errors. Two gentlemen of Verona. Mid-summer night's dream William Shakespeare,1901 Humor in Eighteenth-and Nineteenth-Century British Literature Don Lee Fred Nilsen,1998-05-30 During the 18th and 19th centuries in Britain there was a wide range of literary humor Much of this humor was satiric ranging from the sharp barbs of Pope and Swift to the more subtle but stinging wordplay of Addison In the 18th century Richardson Fielding Smollett and Sterne wrote humorous novels in which they criticized society The period was largely dominated by satire in which the dunce was a common figure There was a proliferation of satires in prose and verse along with satiric operas pamphlets and other writings During the 19th century writers such as Dickens Thackeray Eliot and Carlyle continued to use humor to comment on the issues of their day though their writings were often far more gentle than those of their predecessors This reference book is a comprehensive guide to how British writers of the 18th and 19th centuries used humor in their works An introductory chapter overviews humor in British literature of the era The sections that follow then treat humor in British literature of the 18th century and of the early middle and later 19th century Each of these sections includes a short introduction followed by chronologically arranged profiles of various authors Each profile discusses how the author used humor and includes extensive bibliographic information A thorough index allows the reader to access information alphabetically while the chronological arrangement of the profiles shows how humor in British literature evolved over time

Imperialism Emil Reich,1905 The Works of Shakespeare William Shakespeare,1899 The Nation and the Athenaeum ,1922 Living Thoughts in Words that Burn, from Poet, Sage and Humorist Charles F. Beezley,1891 Nation ,1922 The Nation and Athenaeum ,1922

The Primer of Humor Research Victor Raskin,2008 The book is intended to provide a definitive view of the field of humor research for both beginning and established scholars in a variety of fields who are developing an interest in humor and need to familiarize themselves with the available body of knowledge Each chapter of the book is devoted to an important aspect of humor research or to a disciplinary approach to the field and each is written by the leading expert or emerging scholar in that area There are two primary motivations for the book The positive one is to collect and summarize the impressive body of knowledge accumulated in humor research in and around Humor The International Journal of Humor Research The negative motivation is to prevent the embarrassment to and from the first timers often established experts in their own field who venture into humor research without any notion that there already exists a body of knowledge they need to acquire before publishing anything on the subject unless they are in the business of reinventing the wheel and have serious doubts about its being round The organization of the book reflects the main groups of scholars participating in the increasingly popular and high powered humor research movement throughout the world an 800 to 1 000 strong contingent and growing The chapters are organized along the same lines History Research Issues Main Directions Current Situation Possible Future Bibliography and use the authors definitive credentials not to promote an individual view but rather to give the reader a good comprehensive and condensed view of the area Style, 1976 The Recording Angel Corra Harris, 1912 The Judge, 1915
