Meyer, 2002-05-30 The most important matter of concern for theologians today as always is the existence of God Theologians of the past have relied upon rational proofs for God's existence especially those based on an analysis of contingency and causality These Thomistic proofs served their purpose in a culture that was permeated with philosophical orientations and metaphysical argumentation. But such logical arguments seem to have lost their relevance in our technological age. Many people today are looking to religion not so much for spiritual guidance, counseling, or psychotherapy as for some kind of experience of the mystery which is God. Individuals seeking meaning and hope in their lives are not comforted by a God described as the Necessary Cause or Unmoved Mover. Rather they seek to experience the presence of the personal and loving God of Biblical revelation and the Judeo-Christian tradition. They search for signs of the divine presence in their daily life experiences. This problematic of identifying God's presence in an experience may necessitate the construction of an entirely new theological methodology radically different from the traditional one which proceeded largely by way of rational analysis. Realizing this, Father Meyer analyzes from the theological point of view the experience of God's presence in daily life and surveys the criteria and norms by which that experience can be identified as being of divine origin. He also includes an analysis of the fundamental yet often forgotten role of the Holy Spirit in religious experience, thereby exploring the basis of the current Pentecostal movement.

Affirming the Touch of God Evan B. Howard, 2000-08-02. Both Ignatius of Loyola and Jonathan Edwards wrote about the theme of Christian discernment. Evan B Howard clarifies patterns of Christian discernment common to both Roman Catholics and Protestants. Yet his study extends analysis further through a synthesis of cognitive psychology and religious philosophy. Howard provides greater specification of the roles of affectivity in discernment. This will allow spiritual advisors to better guide men and women into an effective discernment process. Psychologists, philosophers and students of religion will find this book highly valuable.
