Skilful lighting involves a subtle blend of systematic mechanics and a sensitive visual imagination. It requires anticipation, perceptiveness, patience, and know-how. But learning through practice alone can take a great deal of time. This book is a distillation of many years' experience with advice and guidance that will bring successful results right from the start. Whether you are a student studying lighting techniques in the television, video, and film media or a professional lighting for the camera, this book will be an invaluable aid. Other members of the production team, including camera crews, designers, and directors, will also find the information here interesting and useful. The book concentrates primarily on the fundamental principles of lighting in studios, on location, and display, as well as single-camera, small-unit production, improvised and economy lighting, and working with limited facilities. Emphasis is also placed on the safety aspects of working with lighting equipment. Lighting for Television and Film reflects the author's considerable experience of lighting techniques in BBC studios, his teaching and consultancy work. Gerald Millerson's analytical writings spring from a lifetime's personal experience in the medium and from his teaching and engineering background. During his career with the BBC, he was primarily associated with studio operations in the Television Service. His lecturing background included courses in TV production at a number of American universities. His other books for Focal Press are Television Production, TV Scenic Design, Video Production Handbook, and in the Media Manuals series, Effective TV Production, Lighting for Video, and Video Camera Techniques. Tv Lighting Methods: (by) Gerald Millerson Gerald Millerson, 1975 Television Aesthetics Nikos Metallinos, 2013-11-05 USE FIRST TWO PARAGRAPHS ONLY FOR GENERAL CATALOGS This volume offers a response to three ongoing needs: to develop the main composition principles pertinent to the visual communication medium of television; to establish the field of television aesthetics as an extension of the broader field of visual literacy; and to promote television aesthetics to both students and consumers of television. Based on effective empirical research from three axes—perception, cognition, and composition—the aesthetic principles of television images presented are drawn from converging research in academic disciplines such as psychology, perceptual, cognitive, and experimental neurophysiology, and the fine arts—painting, photography, film, theater, music, and more. Although the aesthetics of the fine arts were traditionally built on contextual theories that relied heavily on subjective evaluation, on critical analyses, and on descriptive research methods, the aesthetics of today's visual communication media consider equally valuable empirical methodologies found in all sciences. Investigations in these different academic disciplines have provided the constructs and strengthened the foundations of the theory of television aesthetics offered in this book. Special features include a great variety of pictures supporting the topics discussed; a thorough, up-to-date, and specifically related bibliography for each of the major parts of the book; computer drawings illustrating the concepts examined in the text; scientific data tables and charts documenting the research findings; cited, simplified explanations of the processes of visual, auditory, and motion perceptions of images; enhanced by specific diagrams; detailed analyses of the threefold process of stimulation, perception, and recognition of televised images; and workable, easy-to-understand and use.
