Welfare reform data available to assess TANF's progress. ,2001 Welfare Reform United States Accounting Office,2018-02-12 GAO 01 298 Welfare Reform Data Available to Assess TANF s Progress Welfare Reform U S Government Accountability Office (G,U. S. Government Accountability Office (,2013-07 GAO commented on the federal government s ability to assess the goals of the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families TANF program using national state and local data These data address the goals to differing degrees National data which includes data collected in national surveys and information that all states report to the Department of Health and Human Services HHS include extensive information on TANF s two goals of providing assistance to needy families and ending dependency on government benefits but have limited information on promoting family formation The data pertain to such issues as changes in TANF workloads recipients participation in work activities employment status and earnings and family well being Although there are national data on the incidence of out of wedlock births and marriage among TANF recipients and other low income families these data include only very recently available information on states strategies to prevent out of wedlock pregnancies or promote family formation Studies of welfare reform at the state and local levels contain the same kind of information as national data but they also include information about areas very recently covered by national data Much of these data come from waiver evaluations evaluations conducted in states that experimented with their welfare program under a waiver from HHS prior to TANF The usefulness of existing data for assessing TANF s progress varies In general the need for information about TANF s progress will have to be balanced against the challenges of rigorous data collection from the low income population
