The background of the cover is a landscape photograph. The top half shows a clear, light-colored sky. A thin, dark horizon line separates the sky from a body of water. The bottom half of the image shows a foreground of dry, cracked, and textured earth, suggesting a desert or arid environment.

Word Rides Again Rereading The Frontier:

The Word Rides Again J. David Stevens, 2002 In this manner Bret Harte's sentimental stories become gender bending experiments in which women assume male roles and even enjoy lesbian relationships Owen Wister's The Virginian is transmuted from a misogynistic diatribe into a complex meditation on the peculiarly American relation of violence to male identity And even Willa Cather's Death Comes for the Archbishop rather than the apotheosis of a religious leader becomes a somewhat standard version of the popular frontier story

Historical Archaeology Through a Western Lens Mark Warner, Margaret Purser, 2017-06 A 2017 Choice Outstanding Academic Title The mythic American West with its perilous frontiers big skies and vast resources is frequently perceived as unchanging and timeless The work of many western based historical archaeologists over the past decade however has revealed narratives that often sharply challenge that timelessness Historical Archaeology Through a Western Lens reveals an archaeological past that is distinct to the region but not in ways that popular imagination might suggest Instead this volume highlights a western past characterized by rapid and ever changing interactions between diverse groups of people across a wide range of environmental and economic situations The dynamic and unpredictable lives of western communities have prompted a constant challenging and reimagining of both individual identities and collective understandings of their position within a broader national experience Indeed the archaeological West is one clearly characterized by mobility rather than stasis The archaeologies presented in this volume explore the impact of that pervasive human mobility on the West a world of transience impermanence seasonal migration and accelerated trade and technology at scales ranging from the local to the global By documenting the challenges of both local community building and global networking they provide an archaeology of the West that is ultimately from the West

Fictions of Western American Domesticity Amanda J. Zink, 2018-06-01 This work provides a compelling explanation of something that has bedeviled a number of feminist scholars Why did popular authors like Edna Ferber continue to write conventional fiction while living lives that were far from conventional Amanda J Zink argues that white writers like Ferber and Willa Cather avoided the subject of their own domestic labor by writing about the performance of domestic labor by others showing that American print culture both in novels and through advertisements moved away from portraying women as angels in the house and instead sought to persuade other women to be angels in their houses Zink further explores lesser known works such as Mexican American cookbooks and essays in Indian boarding school magazines to show how women writers dialoging domesticity exemplify the cross cultural encounters between colonial domesticity and sovereign domesticity By situating these interpretations of literature within their historical contexts Zink shows how these writers championed and challenged the ideology of domesticity

God Bless the Broken Bones William Ferraiolo, 2020-10-01 You can learn a lot about yourself if you pay careful attention for one full year Here are 365 daily meditations that through their brutal confessionalism will unearth the stoic in you God Bless the Broken Bones won't tickle your ears with pleasant words Instead what you'll find is a year of one man's seemingly uncensored thoughts, fears, frustrations, longings, gratitude, and self-exhortations. Raw yet eloquent, William Ferraiolo's musings reveal the daily challenges to living a life of equanimity and honor, and why there's no worthier goal. At times, this book might offend you. It will certainly challenge you. And if you're willing, it might change you. I recommend you see for yourself. Seth J. Gillihan, PhD, author of Retrain Your Brain: Cognitive Behavioral Therapy in 7 Weeks.

Forces of Nature Bernadette H. Hyner, 2009-03-26. In Forces of Nature, the authors investigate the relationships between the natural world and gender and sexuality. The authors explore the frameworks within which femininity and nature have been constructed, as well as the impact nature has had on our understandings of masculinity, homosexuality, and heterosexuality. For some writers, nature has restorative powers; for others, nature embodies violence and destruction. Yet one common thread runs across all of the chapters in this collection: nature and animals can not be separated from the human experience. Forces of Nature brings to light the intimate connection humans have with the natural world and provides students and scholars with innovative readings of both canonical and noncanonical texts.

Laughing Matters, a Longman Topics Reader Marvin Diogenes, 2009. Laughing Matters showcases how a range of contemporary writers, including Jon Stewart and David Sedaris, craft persuasive arguments using humor to make their case while entertaining the reader. Many cultural commentators note that we live in an age of comedy. Staples of comic rhetoric—irony, sarcasm, and various forms of lampoon and caricature—have become dominant forms of public discourse, readily available through both traditional print forms and the electronic media that drive public culture. Contemporary comedy helps define public issues and delivers critical perspectives on courses of action, judgments on the morality and effectiveness of policy decisions, and praise and blame for elected leaders. Given this cultural moment, a guide to analyzing how comic arguments are made and to crafting such arguments using the rhetorical strategies particular to comedy seems timely.
