Touch Of Heaven:

The Touch of Livingness Clayten Tylor,2025-07-22 Often when a story contains a strong female character she is edited out Since I am writing about spiritual things where the feminine aspect of the Divine has always been edited out this book intends to restore Her as the main character in the creation theory The feminine aspect of the Divine is what makes love Conjugal We receive it when we are born and adsorb it by breathing If we breathe through our mouth it signifies taking in the masculine aspect of the Divine Yet if we breathe through our nostrils we absorb the feminine aspect of the Divine Spiritual regeneration begins at midlife to reveal the feminine aspect of the Divine previously veiled by our human response She is restored to a Divine Essence by the affection of mutual love that leads the masculine nature back to Conjugal Love

Taking the reader back to the early modern period, this book addresses the works of Shakespeare and asks how historical texts might be seen to interplay with identity. Beginning with Stephen Greenblatt's illuminating essay, questions are raised about how we come up with important historical texts, how we use educational and cultural institutions to maintain their primacy, and what the costs of this can be. Several of the essays look at ways of defining the self in the 16th and 17th centuries and the working through of these notions in various writings. Others tell us about how people traveled and the effects of travel on selfhood, how they dressed, how they celebrated special occasions, and how they thought of work and pleasure. The authors reflect on recent methodological concerns and adapt them to new issues in historically oriented literary and cultural studies. They offer important contributions to new directions in scholarship. The book emerges from a symposium held at the Humanities Research Centre, Australian National University, to celebrate the work of Stephen Greenblatt. Drawing on Greenblatt's methodologies, contributors examine strategies by which we know ourselves through our relationships with the past.
