

Understanding Diabetes

Glucose metabolism

Glucose is the main source of energy for the body's cells. It is transported from the liver to the cells through the bloodstream. In the cells, glucose is broken down into pyruvate, which is then used to produce energy. The liver also stores glucose as glycogen for later use.

Glucagon signals the liver to convert glycogen to glucose and release the glucose into the blood.

Function of insulin

Insulin is a hormone that allows glucose to enter the cells. It is produced by the beta cells of the pancreas. In people with diabetes, the pancreas does not produce enough insulin, or the body's cells do not respond properly to the insulin that is produced.

Action of insulin

Type I

In Type I diabetes, the pancreas does not produce enough insulin. This means that glucose cannot enter the cells, and it builds up in the blood.

Type II

In Type II diabetes, the body's cells do not respond properly to the insulin that is produced. This means that glucose cannot enter the cells, and it builds up in the blood.

Normal

The pancreas produces enough insulin, and the body's cells respond properly to it. Glucose can enter the cells, and it is used for energy.

What is diabetes?

Diabetes is a chronic condition that affects the way the body uses glucose. There are two main types of diabetes: Type 1 and Type 2. In Type 1 diabetes, the body does not produce enough insulin. In Type 2 diabetes, the body's cells do not respond properly to the insulin that is produced.

Cells use glucose as fuel

Glucose is converted to triglycerides and stored in the adipose tissue
