Weed-crop Competition on Spectral Reflectance and Physiological Processes as Demonstrated in Corn (Zea Mays)

Inbal Ronay, 2020 Weed crop competition is one of the most severe problems affecting food production leading to significant yield losses in various crops Previous research has been conducted to characterize the spectral response of crops to the stress caused by weeds but not much progress has been achieved nor has this been fully connected to physiological processes This research focuses on corn Zea mays in competition with redroot pigweed Amaranthus retroflexus a common weed that is known to reduce corn yields The research goal was to examine the ability to detect processes related to crop weed competition through proximal and remote sensing and to characterize physiological changes and their effect on spectral reflectance The main hypothesis of this research was that the physiological changes in corn will mainly affect the absorption in the short wavelength infrared SWIR water absorption regions due to competition for water and water stress From the abstract Studies of Weed-crop Competition Bo Li, 1995 Predicting Crop Phenology Tom Hodges, 1990-12-26 Predicting Crop Phenology focuses on an analysis of the issues faced in predicting the phenology of crop plants and weeds It discusses how these issues have been handled by active crop growth simulation model developers and emphasizes areas such as the role of modeling in agricultural research and the roles of temperature length of day and water stress in plant growth

This comprehensive text also discusses modeling philosophy and programming techniques in modeling crop development and growth. It presents up to date information on phenology models for wheat, maize, sorghum, rice, cotton, and several weed species. Predicting Crop Phenology reviews important data for agricultural engineers, plant physiologists, agricultural consultants, researchers, extension agents, model developers, agricultural science instructors, and students. Special Issue

Role of Crop Competition in Weed Management Gulshan Mahajan, 2017 Plants in Agriculture James C. Forbes, Drennan Watson, 1992-08-20. The effective management of plants is fundamental to all agricultural enterprise, making plant science a key discipline for all growers. This book provides an integrated explanation of all aspects of plant structure and function for students of agriculture, horticulture, and applied biology, with the aim of highlighting the practical relevance of plant science to agriculture. Each chapter is self-contained and self-explanatory, with specific chapters covering energy, water, minerals, structure, growth, and development from sowing to harvest, environmental effects and controls, breeding, vegetative propagation, field production and yield, and the nutritional content of produce. Taken as a whole, Plants in Agriculture fulfills the need for a single text which promotes a comprehensive understanding of how plants operate in agriculture.

Weed Biology and Management Inderjit, 2004-02-29. This book offers a global perspective on weed science by presenting contributions from an outstanding group of researchers in 12 countries, reviewed by over 50 experts. It discusses technologies which could relieve the negative impacts of weeds on crop production in a way that allows growers to optimise profits and preserve human health and the environment. These technologies represent the science of weed management. The aim of the book is to provide insight and recent progress in the science of weed research. Articles presenting the novel and critical appraisals of specific topics are included. Weed management in Conservation Agriculture systems Professor Gottlieb Basch, Dr Emilio J. González-Sánchez, Mr John Geraghty, Dr Seyed Vahid Eslami, Professor Sjoerd W. Duiker, Dr Saidi Mkomwa, Dr Marie L. C. Bartz, 2025-06-27. Considers how weed management can be optimised in Conservation Agriculture (CA) and other low input production systems. Provides a comprehensive overview of the recent research on the use of cultural and physical weed management techniques in CA systems, such as the use of allelopathy and thermal weed control. Reviews the range of chemical and biological weed management techniques available to CA farmers, including the use of bioherbicides and other emerging methods of biological control. Decision Support Systems for Weed Management Guillermo R. Chantre, José L. González-Andújar, 2020-07-31. Weed management Decision Support Systems (DSS) are increasingly important computer-based tools for modern agriculture. Nowadays, extensive agriculture has become highly dependent on external inputs, and both economic costs, as well as the negative environmental impact of agricultural activities, demands knowledge-based technology for the optimization and protection of non-renewable resources. In this context, weed management strategies should aim to maximize economic profit by preserving and enhancing agricultural systems. Although previous contributions focusing on weed biology and weed management provide valuable insight on many aspects of weed species ecology and practical guides for weed control no attempts have been made to highlight the forthcoming importance of DSS in weed management This book is a first attempt to integrate concepts and practice providing a novel guide to the state of art of DSS and the future prospects which hopefully would be of interest to higher level students academics and professionals in related areas

CRC Handbook of Plant Science in Agriculture A. A. Hanson,2019-07-18 First published in 1987 this two volume set is an exhaustive compilation of the most recent data on economically important crops Volume I presents information on genetics botany and growth of crop plants while Volume II covers the production of Crops and their utilization

Weed-crop Ecology Richard J. Aldrich,1984 Considers weed behaviour and management in the context of ecology and agricultural management Treats weeds taxonomy and evolution crop ecology and the role of weed in allelopathy Discusses the mode of action of herbicides biological cultural and chemical control Provides lists of common and scientific names of weeds and chemical names of herbicides

Some Quantitative Aspects of Weed Competition in Vegetable Crops Charles Allan Shadbolt,1955

Weed Biology and Climate Change Lewis H. Ziska,Jeffrey Dukes,2011-01-11 Weed Biology and Climate Change will provide a synthesis of what is known regarding the probable impact of environmental change on weed biology Chapters will look at impacts of weed biology on agriculture invasive species that limit ecological diversity and weeds that serve as health risks In addition it looks at current weed management strategies and how they will be affected by global climate change The book covers an increasingly important area in plant science crop science and ecological research and will be essential reading for anyone exploring the biological impacts of a changing environment
