Words of Conflict, Words of War Fathali M. Moghaddam, Rom Harré, 2010-05-05 This highly insightful and cohesive group of studies reveals the power of political narratives to create conflict and peace Words of Conflict Words of War How the Language We Use in Political Processes Sparks Fighting is a fascinating exploration of the narratives leaders use to position both themselves and others in the course of political processes that lead to peace or conflict Drawing on the relatively new field of positioning theory expert essays provide insights into the ways words position us for better or worse and influence our intended results The focus on narratives from the interpersonal to the international leads to a better understanding of political processes and conflict resolution Part one of the study deals with micropolitics and personal positioning Part two explores positioning by political parties and factions Links between micro and macro are illustrated by leadership studies of individuals such as President Barak Obama President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad President George W Bush Governor Sarah Palin and the Reverend Ian Paisley The focus throughout is on how a leader can use language to redirect collective politics in support of conflict or of peace

War of Words, War of Stones Jonathon Glassman, 2011-02-21 The Swahili coast of Africa is often described as a paragon of transnational culture and racial fluidity Yet during a brief period in the 1960s Zanzibar became deeply divided along racial lines as intellectuals and activists engaged in bitter debates about their nation's future ignited a deadly conflict that spread across the island War of Words War of Stones explores how violently enforced racial boundaries arose from Zanzibar's entangled history Jonathon Glassman challenges explanations that assume racial thinking in the colonial world reflected only Western ideas He shows how Africans crafted competing ways of categorizing race from local tradition and engagement with the Atlantic and Indian Ocean worlds

Which is it? or, War in the heavens; a glimpse behind the scenes of an extreme ritualist, and his brother priest T H. Shaw, 1878 Our War Too Margaret Paton-Walsh, 2002 In the late 1930s a number of American women especially those allied with various peace and isolationist groups protested against the nation's entry into World War II While their story is fairly well known Margaret Paton Walsh reveals a far less familiar story of women who fervently felt that American intervention was absolutely necessary

Paton Walsh recounts how the United States became involved in the war but does so through the eyes of American women who faced it as a necessary evil. Covering the period between 1935 and 1941, she examines how these women functioned as political actors even though they were excluded from positions of power through activism in women's organizations, informal women's networks, and even male-dominated lobbying groups. In the Great Debate over whether America should enter the war, some women favored aid to the Allies not because they hoped for war but because they hoped aid would forestall more direct U.S. involvement but also because they believed war was preferable to a Nazi victory. Paton Walsh shows that this activism involved some of the most prominent women of their day. Elizabeth Cutter Morrow, whose son-in-law Charles Lindbergh was an isolationist spokesman, supported the revision of the Neutrality Acts to allow the sale of arms to the Allies and expressed her support in a national radio broadcast. Soon other women joined this debate: Esther Brunauer of the AAUW, journalist Dorothy Thompson, and organizations like the League of Women Voters and National Women's Trade Union League broke from the pacifist tradition to advocate American aid for the Allied cause. Focusing on the conflict in Europe, Paton Walsh shows how these women grasped the implications of the Lend Lease program for America's entry into the war but supported it nevertheless. By late 1941, the Women's Division of the Fight for Freedom Committee had been established, no longer merely advocating aid to Britain to keep American boys out of battle; this organization supported direct American involvement in the war as a means of stopping Nazi oppression. While most historians have focused on women's pacifism, Paton Walsh connects women more directly to world events and shows how those interventionists reformulated maternalist ideas to justify and explain their beliefs. Our War Too is a story of American women trying to reconcile the irreconcilable: to preserve both their principles and their peace. It expands our understanding of women as political actors and thinkers about foreign policy as it sheds new light on American public opinion over the build-up to the war.
