Twenty Five Thousand Sunsets:

Twenty five thousand sunsets HERBERT. WILCOX,1969 Twenty-five Thousand Sunsets Herbert Sydney Wilcox,1969 Past and Present James Chapman,2005-09-23 This ground breaking book takes as its focal point director Ken Loach s view that The only reason to make films that are a reflection on history is to talk about the present In the first book to take on this major genre in all its complexity James Chapman argues that historical films say as much about the times in which they are made as about the past they purport to portray Through in depth case studies of fourteen key films spanning the 1930s up to the turn of the twenty first century from The Private Life of Henry VIII and Zulu to Chariots of Fire and Elizabeth Chapman examines the place of historical films in British cinema history and film culture Looking closely at the issues that they present from gender class and ethnicity to militarism and imperialism he also discusses controversies over historical accuracy and the ways in which devices such as voice overs title captions and visual references to photographs and paintings assert a sense of historical verisimilitude Exploring throughout the book the dialectical relationship between past and present Chapman reveals how such films promote British achievements but also sometimes question them and how they project images of Britishness to audiences both in the UK and internationally Sunset,1910 Melody in the Dark Adrian Wright,2023 A comprehensive reassessment of British musical films 1946 1972 including King s Rhapsody Beat Girl The Tommy Steele Story Rock You Sinners The Golden Disc and Oliver Acting as a sequel to Adrian Wright s Cheer Up British Musical Films 1929 1945 Boydell 2020 Melody in the Dark offers the first major reassessment of the British musical film from the end of Second World War up to the beginning of the 1970s In the immediate post war world British studios sought to reflect fast changing social attitudes as they struggled to create inventive diversions in an effort to rival American competition Hollywood stars Errol Flynn Vera Ellen Jayne Mansfield and Judy Garland were among those brought in to provide Hollywood glamour Embedded in the British consciousness the operettas of Gilbert and Sullivan were represented in three productions Studios occasionally attempted adaptations of British stage musicals among them King s Rhapsody and Expresso Bongo and sexploitation movies turned musical via Secrets of a Windmill Girl and Beat Girl It was left to minor studios to acknowledge the impact of rock n roll on social change in three early films The Tommy Steele Story Rock You Sinners and the iconic The Golden Disc Through the sixties British cinema seemed intent on flooding the market with entertainments promoting pop singers and rock groups such as Cliff Richard Billy Fury and The Beatles Towards the end of the period it aspired to more grandiose projects such as Oliver and Oh What a Lovely War The Sunset,1898

Lawrence of Arabia Kevin Jackson,2017-10-07 Lawrence of Arabia is widely considered one of the ten greatest films ever made though more often by film goers and film makers than by critics This monograph argues that popular wisdom is correct and that Lean s film is a unique blend of visionary image making narrative power mythopoetic charm and psychological acuteness Silent to Sound Geoff Brown,2024-10-22 Silent cinema was never silent But from the mid 1920s onwards the sound part of the cinema experience was transformed by the arrival of films long and short with clearly audible talk music and sound effects built in. It marked the most fundamental shift in cinema technology since cinema's birth. The first book devoted to Britain's conversion to talkies and the result of eight years' research, Silent to Sound: British Cinema in Transition, takes a lively and comprehensive look at the production side of the British sound revolution stretching from experimental efforts in the late 19th century through the sound shorts of the 1920s to the key year of 1929, the year of Hitchcock's Blackmail, Britain's first home-grown talkie feature, and the industry turmoil that followed. The narrative concludes in 1934 when John Grierson's GPO Film Unit finally acquired sound equipment, prompting a late burst of experimentation just when commercial feature soundtracks had settled down. Films familiar, neglected, and unknown are examined: overripe melodramas, the lost Black Waters, local versions of Hollywood musicals, Harmony, Heaven, visually elaborate science fiction, High Treason, plus newsreels, documentaries, amateur films, and the last phase of British silent production. The impact of sound on studio technique is examined along with the industry's complex relations with Britain's strong theatre traditions, with Europe, and above all, cinema's superpower, America. It's also never forgotten that the sound transition was shaped not just by technology but by the talents, foibles, and follies of individual people. Film history with a human face.

History of British Film (Volume 4) Rachael Low, 2013-09-13
Rachael Low's seven-volume History of British Film is one of the cornerstones of film scholarship and one of the most important works on twentieth-century British culture. Published between 1948 and 1985, the volumes document all aspects of film-making in Britain from its origins in 1896 to 1939.

Imperialism and music Jeffrey Richards, 2017-03-01
Music played a major role in the life of a global ideological phenomenon like the British Empire. This book demonstrates that music has to be recognised as one of the central characteristics of the cultural imperialism of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. It begins with an account of the imperial music of Sir Edward Elgar and Sir Arthur Sullivan and the establishing of an imperial musical idiom. The book discusses the music composed for or utilized by official occasions: coronations, jubilees, exhibitions, tattoos, Armistice Day, and Empire Day. Community singing was also introduced at the Aldershot Military Tattoo in 1927, sponsored by the Daily Express. The book examines the imperial content of a range of musical forms: operetta and ballet films, music hall songs, ballads, hymns, and marches. In one of the scenes depicting ballet, Indian dancing girls are ordered to reveal the riches of the land and the Ballet of Jewels. There were two staples of song in the second half of the nineteenth century: the drawing room ballad and the music hall song. Sir Henry Coward was Britain's leading chorus master, and his 1911 musical world tour with Sheffield choir was the high point of his career. The book concludes with a discussion of practitioners of imperial music: the divas Emma Albani, Nellie Melba, and Clara Butt, and the baritone Peter Dawson.
