Global Communications, International Affairs and the Media Since 1945 Philip Taylor,2002-11-01 In Global Communications International Affairs and the Media since 1945 Philip M Taylor traces the increased involvement of the media in issues of peace and especially war from the nineteenth century to the present day He analyzes the nature role and impact of communications within the international arena since 1945 and how communications interacts with foreign policy in practice rather than in theory Using studies which include the Gul War and Vietnam Taylor details the contemporary problems reporting while at the same time providing a comprehensive historical context

The New Great Power Coalition Richard N. Rosecrance,2001 The Great Power coalition of the early 19th century succeeded in keeping the peace among the major states of England France Prussia Russia and Austria For the last century and a half however no truly encompassing coalition has emerged and in its absence the 20th century was plagued by world wars and peripheral conflicts Only now at the outset of the 21st century is a new Great Power coalition possible This book examines the prospect of a Great Power coalition that would be sustained by the development of overlapping international clubs The new set of Great Powers the United States Japan the European Union China and Russia can be increasingly bound together through a combination of status and economic incentives international norms and regimes and the emulation of national and regional best practices The construction of such a coalition presents special problems and opportunities for the United States In the years ahead America will need to adjust its policies to bring China and Russia into membership of such a group or see them progressively adopt recalcitrant and antagonistic attitudes toward world affairs
