The Myth of the Closed Mind Ray Scott Percival, 2012 Religious zeal suicide terrorism passionate commitment to ideologies and the results of various psychological tests are often cited to show that humans are fundamentally irrational The author examines all such supposed examples of irrationality and argues that they are compatible with rationality Rationality does not mean absence of error but the possibility of correcting error in the light of criticism In this sense all human beliefs are rational they are all vulnerable to being abandoned when shown to be faulty The Myth of the Closed Mind Ray Scott Percival, 2011-12-15 It's like talking to a brick wall and We'll have to agree to disagree are popular sayings referring to the frustrating experience of discussing issues with people who seem to be beyond the reach of argument It's often claimed that some people fundamentalists or fanatics are indeed sealed off from rational criticism And every month new pop psychology books appear describing the dumb ways ordinary people make decisions as revealed by psychological experiments The conclusion is that all or most people are fundamentally irrational Ray Scott Percival sets out to demolish the whole notion of the closed mind and of human irrationality There is a difference between making mistakes and being irrational Though humans are prone to mistakes they remain rational In fact making mistakes is a sign of rationality a totally non rational entity could not make a mistake Rationality does not mean absence of error it means the possibility of correcting error in the light of criticism In this sense all human beliefs are rational they are all vulnerable to being abandoned when shown to be faulty Percival agrees that people cling stubbornly to their beliefs but he maintains that not being too ready to abandon one's beliefs is rational

The Closed Mind Sanford Berman, 1969 The Closed Partisan Mind Matthew D. Luttig, 2023-04-15 The Closed Partisan Mind traces the roots of partisan polarization to psychological closed mindedness in the electorate and the changing perception of politics created by polarized political leaders and the new media environment American politics today can be defined by the intense and increasingly toxic divide between Democrats and Republicans Matthew D Luttig explores why so many Americans have endorsed this level of political conflict Luttig illustrates how the psychological need for closure leads people regardless of whether they identify as Democrat or Republican to express more polarized political attitudes This association between closed minds and partisan polarization is a new phenomenon and can be traced to broader changes in American society such as the creation of ideologically distinct political parties and a fragmented media environment These developments have simplified politics into a black or white us versus them conflict making politics appeal to those with closed minds Today strong partisans do not just cheer for their political party to win elections Instead more akin to religious true believers strong partisans use their affiliation as a means of understanding right and wrong friend and enemy true and false The Closed Partisan Mind reveals that these dynamics have manifested in both a new type of partisanship and a new type of partisan The emergence of this new closed partisanship illustrates the dangers that polarization has wrought on society politics and the minds of Americans
