Sustainability Indicators Tomás Hák, Bedrich Moldan, Arthur Lyon Dahl, 2007-05-14

While the concept of sustainability has been widely embraced it has been only vaguely defined and is exceedingly difficult to measure Sustainability indicators are critical to making the broad concept of sustainability operational by providing specific measures by which decision makers and the public can judge progress Sustainability Indicators defines the present state of the art in indicator development It presents a comprehensive assessment of the science behind various indicators while placing special emphasis on their use as communications tools The contributors draw on their experience as academics and practitioners to describe the conceptual challenges to measuring something as complex as sustainability at local regional national and global scales The book also reviews existing indicators to assess how they could be better employed considering which indicators are overused and which have been underutilized Sustainability Indicators will help planners and policy makers find indicators that are ready for application and relevant to their needs and will help researchers identify the unresolved issues where progress is most urgently needed All readers will find advice as to the most effective ways to use indicators to support decision making

An Assessment of Sustainability Indicator Programs in Large US Cities Josef Kaul, 2014 Sustainability is a concept wrought with meaning and importance in today's world Although many different definitions and uses of the word exist the most common definition comes from the Brundtland report 1987 Sustainable development is development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs paragraph 49 This definition along with mandates set out by the United Nations Agenda 21 have spurred the growth of Sustainability Indicators SIs United Nations 1993 SIs are measurable metrics statistics or other data that can assess progress towards a desired sustainability goal This study aims to answer the question How many US metro regions have sustainability plans and are measuring their success with Sustainability Indicators It then attempts to create a comparable list of SIs being used in the 40 largest metro areas in the United States by using the International Urban Sustainability Indicators List IUSIL The results of this study indicate that 35 out of the 40 largest US metro areas use sustainability plans Additionally 23 out of the 40 metro areas use Sustainability Indicators to measure progress towards the sustainability goals set forth in their plans This means 46% of the US population live in cities using sustainability plans and 29% of the population live in cities using Sustainability Indicators The study also reveals only a 17% average compliance rate with the IUSIL The study recommends that communities use the STAR Community Index for a comprehensive list of Sustainability Indicators
