percentage points higher than in previous elections The 1992 campaigns were also the longest the most negative and the most professional in many years Even the results were dramatic a party turnover in four state executive offices and two congressional seats Not everyone considered all of these changes in Missouri politics to be positive Soon after the election on November 20 1992 campaign managers and reporters from throughout Missouri gathered at the University of Missouri Columbia to discuss and dissect the races This book offers their analyses and evaluations

Campaign '96 William L. Benoit,Joseph R. Blaney,P.M. Pier,1998-11-24 Benoit Blaney and Pier apply the functional theory of political campaign discourse to the 1996 presidential campaign When a citizen casts a vote he or she makes a decision about which candidate is preferable There are only three types of rhetorical strategies for persuading voters to believe a candidate is the better choice acclaiming or self praise attacking or criticizing an opponent and defending or responding to attacks As they illustrate acclaims if accepted by the audience make the candidate appear better Attacks can make the opponent seem worse improving the source s apparent preferability If attacked a candidate can attempt to restore or prevent lost credibility by defending against that attack As Benoit Blaney and Pier point out the functional theory of political communication is relatively new and their book illustrates it with a detailed analysis of the most recent presidential campaign One of the major strengths of the study is the variety of message forms examined television spots debates talk radio appearances keynote speeches acceptance speeches speeches by spouses radio addresses and free television time remarks It also examines all three parts of the campaign primary nominating conventions and general campaign This comprehensive analysis of the 96 presidential campaign will be of considerable use to students scholars and other researchers dealing with contemporary American electioneering
