

They Say I Say: Chapter 1+2 Key Points

- A writer must not only state the thesis, but also what the thesis is responding to. (Context)
- Pay Attention to order when writing; start with what others are saying, then introduce your own ideas/opinions.
- Continue to remind reader of the author's argument as you explain your own.
- Ways to introduce what others are saying (Author): "It has become common to dismiss", "In their recent work Y and Z have offered harsh critiques of ____".
- Ways to introduce an ongoing debate: "In discussions of X, one controversial issue has been _____. On the other hand, _____ argues _____. My own view is _____".
- Balance original authors ideas with your own.
- Without a good balance of ideas and background the argument has no power.
- Summarization of what you are responding to is important.
- Balance your summary so your reader can form their own opinion on the source, without having to read it.
- Do not allow your own views and opinions to come through when summarizing their arguments.

Art supervisors in the public schools assign picture study work in each grade recommending the study of certain pictures by well known masters As Supervisor of Drawing I found that the children enjoyed this work but that the teachers felt incompetent to conduct the lessons as they lacked time to look up the subject and to gather adequate material Recourse to a great many books was necessary and often while much information could usually be found about the artist very little was available about his pictures Hence I began collecting information about the pictures and preparing the lessons for the teachers just as I would give them myself to pupils of their grade My plan does not include many pictures during the year as this is to be only a part of the art work and is not intended to take the place of drawing The lessons in this grade are planned for the usual drawing period of from twenty to thirty minutes and have been given in that time successfully However the most satisfactory way of using the books is as supplementary readers thus permitting each child to study the pictures and read the stories himself Preface
