

STUNNED MYOCARDIUM

Stunned Myocardium

- Myocardial function is reduced during ischemia
- Myocardial function recovers completely if ischemia lasts less than 2 minutes
- With more severe and more prolonged ischemia, myocardial function recovery is delayed after blood flow is restored. Stunning is this delayed recovery.

Chronic Hibernating Myocardium

- Chronic ischemia
- Chronic reduction of function
- No infarction (viable myocardium)
- Reduced mitochondrial activity but normal ATP reserve
- Increased arrhythmias, increased sympathetic innervation disparity

Stunned Myocardium:

Myocardial Ischemia and Reperfusion Michael V. Cohen, J.M. Downey, R.J. Gelpi, Jan Slezak, 2012-12-06 The articles collected in this volume largely arose from two related meetings held last spring. The first was held in Buenos Aires, Argentina on April 11-12, 1997 and was titled Nuevos Avances en el Fenomeno de Isquemia y Reperfusion (New Advances in the Phenomenon of Ischemia and Reperfusion). The second meeting took place in Star Lesn, located in the High Tatras Mountains of the Slovak Republic on June 27-30, 1997. Both meetings were sponsored by several organizations including the International Society and Federation of Cardiology, the International Society for Heart Research, and The American Heart Association.

The Cellular Basis of Cardiovascular Function in Health and Disease Pawan K. Singal, Vincenzo Panagia, Grant N. Pierce, 2012-12-06 This special issue of Molecular and Cellular Biochemistry contains original research articles and review papers which were invited from the participants of a recent meeting organized to honour the 60th birthday of Naranjan S. Dhalla, Ph.D., M.D., Hon. The meeting, organized by Drs. Morris Karmazyn (London) and Grant Pierce (Winnipeg), and Balwant Tuana (Ottawa), was held at the Best Western Lakeside Inn in Kenora, Ontario, Canada, on August 23-25, 1996. The meeting was entitled The Cellular Basis of Cardiovascular Function in Health and Disease. There were over 40 invited speakers from 15 different countries represented at the meeting, attended by over 280 people. Keynote lectures were presented by Drs. Norman Alpert (Burlington, VT), Robert Jennings (Chapel Hill, NC), Makoto Nagano (Tokyo, Japan), Howard Morgan (Danville, PA), John Solaro (Chicago, IL), and Nobuskira Takeda (Tokyo, Japan). Dr. Henry Friesen, President of the Medical Research Council of Canada, presented Dr. Dhalla with a plaque at the banquet honouring his research accomplishments over his distinguished career. Dr. Dhalla's outstanding research achievements in understanding the subcellular basis of cardiovascular disease were highlighted at the meeting. One of the unique aspects of the meeting was the special effort made by 39 former trainees of Dr. Dhalla to attend the meeting to honour their mentor. The ex-students and trainees came from all over Canada, the United States, Japan, Slovakia, Germany, the Czech Republic, Estonia, and the Netherlands. The meeting was judged to be an overwhelming success in terms of the scientific content as well as collaborative interactions initiated.

Stunning, Hibernation, and Calcium in Myocardial Ischemia and Reperfusion Lionel H. Opie, 1992-09-30 Stunning is potentially an important complication of myocardial reperfusion. In contrast, hibernation is an important complication of myocardial ischemia. This book presents different viewpoints on these subjects taken from a series of peer-reviewed articles which first appeared in Cardiovascular Drugs and Therapy and now in this book. In addition, a certain number of articles were directly invited for the book. The introductory article is by Eugene Braunwald, who with Kloner introduced the term myocardial stunning in 1982. The experimental phenomenon had first been described by Heyndrickx et al. This important concept of stunning is examined from a number of points of view in a series of articles which clarify the experimental causes and the clinical implications. The section on hibernation is introduced by Tubau and Rahimtoola the latter having first propounded the concept in 1989 The difference between stunning and hibernation is that stunning is essentially a post ischemic dysfunction of the myocardium temporary in nature occurring at a time when coronary blood flow is apparently normal or supranormal Hibernation on the other hand is a condition of reduced contractile activity the direct result of chronic ischemia and hence a sign of a tolerable reduction in blood flow Possibly the reduction in contractile activity of the hibernating heart balances the reduction in the oxygen availability the smart heart of Rahimtoola This non contractile heart is hibernating awaiting the return of summer after winter and willing to contract normally again whenever warm coronary blood is restored It is certain that the concepts of stunning and hibernation are here to stay that they have or will have clinical relevance and that the search for the most appropriate diagnosis and therapy for each condition is now under way Hence a greater understanding of the experimental work which underlies these two conditions is highly appropriate

Myocardial Preservation, Preconditioning, and Adaptation Dipak Kumar Das, Richard M. Engelman, K. M. Cherian (M.D.), 1996 In this volume basic scientists cardiologists and cardiac surgeons discuss all that is known about preconditioning adaptation and how this state of the art technique compares with conventional techniques of myocardial preservation unveiling its mechanism of protection and potential clinical application

New Paradigms of Coronary Artery Disease G. Heusch, R. Schulz, 2013-04-17 Detailed analyses of regional myocardial blood flow function metabolism and morphology in ischemic and reperfused myocardium have led to the identification of important phenomena i e myocardial hibernation myocardial stunning and ischemic preconditioning Both the hibernating and the stunned myocardium characterize viable though dysfunctional as distinguished from necrotic tissue With the advent of reperfusion procedures the distinction between reversibly injured hypofunctional myocardium from irreversibly injured hypofunctional myocardium is of utmost clinical importance The pathophysiological distinction of hibernating and stunned myocardium is controversial but reperfusion is mandatory anyway Ischemic preconditioning is the most powerful maneuver known so far to delay infarct development Its clinical significance has been suggested from retrospective analyses of data from patients suffering a myocardial infarction as well as from controlled PTCA studies Whether or not preconditioning can be achieved pharmacologically in the clinical setting remains to be established The mechanisms and signal cascade underlying myocardial hibernation myocardial stunning and ischemic preconditioning are not clear in detail Over the last year focussed issues on myocardial hibernation myocardial stunning and ischemic preconditioning were published in Basic Research in Cardiology they have received great interest and a good response Therefore these focussed issues are now combined and published as a separate monograph We express our gratitude once more to all our colleagues who contributed to this monograph to Ms Ibkendanz of Steinkopff and to Ms Philipp and Mr Heinrichs from Bayer AG Germany who supported this additional publication
