Somerset Airfields in the Second World War David Berryman,2004-10 Somerset was not in the front line during the early stages of the war and its airfields initially fulfilled a training and support role However it was not long before fighters were stationed in the county as part of the defences against enemy air attacks and the number of airfields quickly increased Lulgate Bottom and Yeovilton were opened in 1940 followed by Culmhead which also housed the Polish Air Force In Exile and a Czech Wing Charlton Horethorne Charmy Down and Merryfield both later transferred to the US Ninth Air Force and North Stoke Operations from the county's airfields gradually increased in momentum and its units made a significant contribution to the outstanding success of the Normandy landings and later the Arnhem operation This book describes the history of each airfield and highlights the major operations carried out from them The effects of the war on the daily lives of the people of Somerset and the hardship and constant dangers they suffered are also detailed David Berryman's action packed book will appeal equally to aviation enthusiasts and to readers who recall the era when the skies overhead never ceased to throb with the drone of departing and returning aircraft

Airfields of the D-Day Invasion Air Force Peter Jacobs, 2009-10-29 As part of the Aviation Heritage Trail series the airfields and interest in this book are concentrated in a particular area in this case Kent Surrey East Sussex Essex and Greater London The South east of England emerged from six years of war with a rich diversity of RAF bomber and fighter airfields used by the 2nd Tactical Air Force both before and after the D Day landings Much of this proud legacy is now threatening to disappear However the tourist can combine visits to an abundance of disused and active airfields country houses and museums with countless attractions imaginative locations and broadland and coastal hideaways that have no equal The airfields and other places of interest include Northolt Manston Sculthorp Dunsfold Swanton Morley Hunston Gravesend Detling Biggin Hill Kenley Redhill Gatwick Heston Hornchurch Chailey Coolham Horne West Malling and Newchurch This book looks at the history and personalities associated with each base what remains today and explores the favourite local wartime haunts where aircrew and ground crew would have sought well deserved entertainment and relaxation Other museums and places that are relevant will also be described and general directions on how to get them included

Invasion Airfields Winston Ramsey, 2017-08-30 In his 1945 report to the Combined Chiefs of Staff on the success of Operation Overlord the Supreme Commander General Eisenhower wrote that on the morning of June 9 I was able to announce that for the first time since 1940 Allied air forces were operating from France and that within three weeks of D Day 31 Allied squadrons were operating from the beach head bases In their forecasts for the first three months following D Day the planners plotted the number of the advanced landing grounds that would be required in Normandy to support the Allied air forces up to September 1944 Using maps and aerial photographs individual sites were surveyed and plans drawn up so that when each location was captured either US Aviation Engineers the Royal Engineers or RAF Airfield Construction Wings could move in without delay to begin work to build them This book tells the story of every airfield that became operational by D 90 explaining the methods used to construct them and the units that flew from them The vast majority of the temporary airstrips have now been returned to the farmland from which they came but by using engineers plans from the period and modern aerial photographs we have portrayed the sites in true After the Battle fashion as they were then and as they are today
