J. Ridgeon,2008 In recent years interest in Sufism often regarded as the mystical dimension of Islam has blossomed Taught in European and American universities for many years Sufism is an increasingly popular area of research in disciplines such as Islamic Studies comparative religion area studies anthropology history and politics In this new Routledge Major Work the editor a leading scholar in the field has gathered in four volumes the canonical and the very best cutting edge literature on Sufism to create an indispensable reference resource The collection focuses on origins and development hermeneutics and doctrines ritual authority and word and modern Sufism   Reflections of Tasawwuf Charles Upton,2008 Sufism is the practice of remaining aware of the real presence of God in every circumstance until Certainty is reached The dizzying complexity of Sufi metaphysics the passionate beauty of Sufi poetry and the profound Sufi science of spiritual psychology are all based on this The Sufi Path is the process of spiritual transformation ultimately resulting God willing in self transcendence produced by the Certainty of God s presence In traditional Muslim society many different moral intellectual and spiritual functions were performed by those estates responsible for maintaining them Parents imams and grammar school teachers transmitted the fundamental ritual and moral principles of Islamic society The madrasas took care of such traditional sciences as Qur anic exegesis and the study of prophetic ahadith The schools of fiqh maintained and applied the shari ah The mutakallimiin developed and taught kalam Islamic scholastic theology The falasifa or philosophers carried on an intellectual tradition largely inherited from the Greeks The ishraqiyyun developed a mystical theosophy based on direct spiritual insight Physicians employed systems of healing derived in part from metaphysics Poets often transmitted sophisticated spiritual lore many other traditional craftsmen did the same The mathematicians astronomers and other scientists sought to uncover the Signs of God in numbers in geometrical shapes and in the heavens And the alchemists worked on the reconstitution of the original human form al fitra in psycho physical terms So when a seeker applied for admittance to a Sufi tariqa he likely knew his Goal The lower rungs of the ladder of moral intellectual and spiritual aspiration were clearly defined and largely taken care of consequently the aspirant to Sufi initiation could be more certain than he was seeking God Alone In modern semi Muslim societies however things are not so clear And as for those Sufi tariqas that have emigrated to the West and the individuals who seek admittance to them the situation is even more ambiguous The traditional supports for a collective worldview that places God first and sees His hand in everything are no longer readily available and no one whose worldview is basically secular can follow the Sufi path as the great Sufis of the past once did In the secular West especially Sufi tariqas lack the exoteric religious culture in relation to which they could be truly esoteric without the Zahir one might say there can be no Batin Therefore This book is not so much a text on Sufism itself as an attempt woefully inadequate to indicate certain elements of the original context that allowed Sufism to be what it is   The World's Best Essays, from the Earliest Period to the Present Time David Josiah Brewer,Edward Archibald Allen,William Schuyler,1900
