The Cheshire Cat:

Small Wild Cats James G. contextuality has developed from a purely theoretical level to a stage where direct experimental tests become amenable. However, the experimental research on contextuality at the current stage largely focuses on direct validations of some most famous predictions of contextuality while other forms of contextuality and its practical applications in quantum information science are rarely involved. The research in this thesis is committed to bridge this gap from two directions: 1 to construct and test stronger forms of contextuality and relieve the requirements of contextuality experiments on experimental platforms and 2 to explore the connections between contextuality and the other concepts in quantum information science and directly demonstrate the application of contextuality in broader scenarios. Specifically, the thesis has discussed the research topics about the relationship between quantum contextuality and nonlocality, the all versus nothing paradoxes from quantum contextuality, the pre and post selection paradoxes from quantum contextuality, and the topological protection and braiding dynamics of quantum contextuality in quasiparticle systems.
