Thinking Cop Feeling Cop:

Thinking Cop, Feeling Cop Stephen M. Hennessy, 1999 A groundbreaking resource for police executives officers on the street media representatives trainers and others involved in the fields of civil and criminal justice A broad range of topics include personality types in policing differences in communication and management styles strengths and weaknesses of each style women in law enforcement and police conflicts with other professions Third edition FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, 1994 Heroin User's Handbook Francis Moraes, Ph.D., 2016-09-13 Heroin is a fascinating drug to most people It is often referred to as the hardest drug By this logic people might start with alcohol work up to marijuana and maybe LSD Then they reach to cocaine or methamphetamine And finally at the end of the journey is heroin But like most things about heroin this is more myth than reality For non users this mythic power is exciting And writers for the last century have been more than willing to pander to such readers in pulp and art novels all the way up to television crime novels But it is rare for the most people to get a real look at what is after all the very core of what heroin is about for its users To users the interest is obvious But ignorance of the the details of drug use among heroin users is rife usually based on what the author calls old junkie tales The difference between such folklore and the truth is often the difference between life and death The Heroin User's Handbook reveals the largely hidden world of heroin use based upon actual work with users and countless scholarly books and articles And it does it in an extremely readable non technical manner even while providing detailed and accurate information The book discusses all aspects of heroin use the acquisition of drugs the administration of them health risks legal issues social aspects and addiction and detox It provides the non heroin world with a detailed look inside a very rarefied subculture But it also provides the those in the heroin using world life saving information Good Cops, Bad Cops Edward E. Shev, Jeremy Joan Hewes, 1977 This book written by a police psychiatrist stresses the importance of selecting the best possible candidates for police work and the need for openly confronting personnel and recruitment problems It is important to talk about inherent difficulties of police work the lack of proper selection procedures and adequate supervision and the lack of appropriate administrative procedures A major problem is that police recruitment officials do not select the best possible individuals for police duty Approximately 35 percent of all police officers are estimated to be psychologically unsuited for police work and should never have been hired When weaknesses inevitably develop in police departments officers encountering problems are often not assisted by department administrators Interviewing entry level candidates for police work is referred to as the psychotherapeutic interview and this type of interviewing requires the use of psychiatrists in all phases of personnel selection and promotion and inservice counseling if it is to be successful The first part of the book contains a chronological account of the author's work with members of a municipal police department and city council in California The second part of the book deals with police officers and their families departments and profession and with the role of police in crime prevention An appendix explores psychological dynamics and the rescue fantasy motivation aspect of
