The Culling One Perception:

Neural Mechanisms of Perceptual Categorization as Precursors to Speech Perception Einat Liebenthal, Lynne E. Bernstein, 2017-05-03 Perceptual categorization is fundamental to the brain's remarkable ability to process large amounts of sensory information and efficiently recognize objects including speech. Perceptual categorization is the neural bridge between lower level sensory and higher level language processing. A long line of research on the physical properties of the speech signal as determined by the anatomy and physiology of the speech production apparatus has led to descriptions of the acoustic information that is used in speech recognition e.g. stop consonants place and manner of articulation voice onset time aspiration. Recent research has also considered what visual cues are relevant to visual speech recognition i.e. the visual counter parts used in lipreading or audiovisual speech perception. Much of the theoretical work on speech perception was done in the twentieth century without the benefit of neuroimaging technologies and models of neural representation. Recent progress in understanding the functional organization of sensory and association cortices based on advances in neuroimaging presents the possibility of achieving a comprehensive and far reaching account of perception in the service of language. At the level of cell assemblies research in animals and humans suggests that neurons in the temporal cortex are important for encoding biological categories. On the cellular level different classes of neurons interneurons and pyramidal neurons have been suggested to play differential roles in the neural computations underlying auditory and visual categorization. The moment is ripe for a research topic focused on neural mechanisms mediating the emergence of speech representations including auditory visual and even somatosensory based forms. Important progress can be achieved by juxtaposing within the same research topic the knowledge that currently exists the identified lacunae and the theories that can support future investigations. This research topic provides a snapshot and platform for discussion of current understanding of neural mechanisms underlying the formation of perceptual categories and their relationship to language from a multidisciplinary and multisensory perspective. It includes contributions reviews original research methodological developments pertaining to the neural substrates dynamics and mechanisms underlying perceptual categorization and their interaction with neural processes governing speech perception.

Hearing - From Sensory Processing to Perception B. Kollmeier, G. Klump, V. Hohmann, U. Langemann, M. Mauermann, S. Uppenkamp, J. Verhey, 2007-09-21 Hearing From Sensory Processing to Perception presents the papers of the latest International Symposium on Hearing a meeting held every three years focusing on psychoacoustics and the research of the physiological mechanisms underlying auditory perception. The proceedings provide an up to date report on the status of the field of research into hearing and auditory functions. The 59 chapters treat topics such as the physiological representation of temporal and spectral stimulus properties as a basis for the perception of modulation patterns pitch and signal intensity spatial hearing and the physiological mechanisms of binaural processing in mammals integration of the different stimulus features into auditory scene analysis physiological mechanisms related to the formation of auditory objects speech perception and limitations of auditory perception resulting from hearing disorders

The Perception of Speech Brian Moore, Lorraine Tyler, William Marslen-Wilson, 2009-11-12 Humans are unique in being able to convey such complex information using speech and in the range of ideas thoughts and emotions that can be expressed This crossdisciplinary book explores how the motor gestures of a speaker are transformed to sounds and how those are mapped onto meaning in the comprehension of spoken language The Oxford Handbook of Cognitive Neuroscience, Volume 1 Kevin Ochsner, Stephen M. Kosslyn, 2013-12 A rich source of authoritative information that supports reading and study in the field of cognitive neuroscience this two volume handbook reviews the current state of the science in all major areas of the field

The Perceptual Structure of Sound Dik J. Hermes, 2023-06-10 This book presents a comprehensive review of how acoustic waves are processed by the auditory system into structured sounds such as musical melodies speech utterances or environmental sounds After an introduction an overview is given of how the ears distribute acoustic information over a large array of frequency channels that contain the auditory information used by the central nervous system to generate a mental image of what is happening around the listener This process called auditory scene analysis consists of two stages In the first stage auditory units are formed such as musical tones and speech syllables Each auditory unit is perceived at a well defined moment in time the beat location of that auditory unit Moreover from this process of auditory unit formation the auditory attributes of these auditory units emerge such as their timbre their pitch their loudness and their perceived location Each of these attributes is discussed in the corresponding chapter In the second stage of auditory scene analysis auditory stream formation the successive auditory units are integrated into auditory streams i e temporally structured sequences of auditory units that are perceived as emanating from one and the same sound source Examples of such auditory streams are musical melodies and the utterances of one speaker The temporal structure of an auditory stream its rhythm is determined by the beat locations of its auditory units The role played by the auditory attributes of the consecutive auditory units is discussed The melodies of musical streams and the intonation contours of spoken utterances emerge from this process In music the beats of parallel streams generally fit into a metric pattern and depending on harmony simultaneous tones can be perceived as consonant or dissonant Finally the book contains many sound examples including the MATLAB scripts with which they are generated
