Tragic Choices:

Tragic Choices Guido Calabresi, Philip Bobbitt, 1978 This book offers a general theoretical account of how societies cope with decisions which they regard as tragic

Re-Reasoning Ethics Barry Hoffmaster, Cliff Hooker, 2023-10-31 How developing a more expansive non formal conception of reason produces richer ethical understandings of human situations explored and illustrated with many real examples In Re Reasoning Ethics Barry Hoffmaster and Cliff Hooker enhance and empower ethics by adopting a non formal paradigm of rational deliberation as intelligent problem solving and a complementary non formal paradigm of ethical deliberation as problem solving design to promote human flourishing The non formal conception of reason produces broader and richer ethical understandings of human situations not the simple constrained depictions provided by moral theories and their logical applications in medical ethics and bioethics Instead it delivers and vindicates the moral judgment that complex contextual and dynamic situations require Hoffmaster and Hooker demonstrate how this more expansive rationality operates with examples first in science and then in ethics Non formal reason brings rationality not just to the empirical world of science but also to the empirical realities of human lives Among the many real cases they present is that of how women at risk of having children with genetic conditions decide whether to try to become pregnant These women do not apply the formal principle of maximizing expected utility as advised by genetic counselors and instead imagine scenarios of what their lives could be like with an affected child and assess whether they could accept the worst of these scenarios Hoffmaster and Hooker explain how moral compromise and a liberated extended and enriched reflective equilibrium expand and augment rational ethical deliberation and how that deliberation can rationally design ethical practices institutions and policies

Tragic Choices Simona Botti, Sheena S. Iyengar, 2011 We investigate how making highly consequential highly undesirable decisions affects emotions and preference for autonomy We examine individuals facing real or hypothetical decisions to discontinue their infants life support who either choose personally or have physicians choose for them Findings from a multidisciplinary approach consisting of a qualitative analysis of in depth interviews and three laboratory studies reveal that perceived personal causality for making tragic decisions generates more negative feelings than having the same choices externally made Tragic decisions also undermine coping abilities weakening the desire for autonomy Consequently participants disliked making decisions but also resented relinquishing their option to choose
