Grabler, 1971 Unions in the Military? David Cortright, Strom Thurmond, 1977 The Issue of Military Unionism Colben K. Sime, 1977 Military Unions James Lester Quinn, Ronald V. Grabler, AIR FORCE INST OF TECH WRIGHT-PATTERSON AFB OHIO SCHOOL OF SYSTEMS AND LOGISTICS., 1971 The possibility exists that a labor union within the military services of the United States could become a reality with the advent of an all volunteer armed force The actual probability of such an event being indeterminate at this time the situation should be closely studied to determine the advantages and disadvantages of military unionization are presented along with the possible limitations on a military union should it become a reality Two military unions operating with some degree of success in West Germany and Norway respectively are analyzed Limitations common to both the Norwegian and West German unions are discussed to determine their possible applicability to the armed forces of the United States Hearings on S. 274 Unionization of Military Personnel Before the Investigations Subcommittee of the Committee on Armed Services, House of Representatives, Ninety-fifth Congress, First Session United States. Congress. House. Committee on Armed Services. Subcommittee on Investigations, 1978 Blue-collar Soldiers? Alan Ned Sabrosky, 1977 A Case Against Unionization in the Armed Forces William J. Furtado, ARMY WAR COLL CARLISLE BARRACKS PA., Army War College (U.S.), 1984 This paper examines the issue of unionization within the Armed Forces of the United States from a rational rather than emotional standpoint The paper is introduced by an overview and an historical background which presents the development of legal framework for collective bargaining in both the private and public sectors and establishes a context for the discussion of military issues Three major issues are then developed and addressed in separate chapters 1 the question of successful precedence 2 the question of constitutionality and 3 erosion of the military institution The author concludes that there is no successful precedence either in this country or in Western Europe Further that the existing law prohibiting union membership by members of the Armed Forces is in fact constitutional Finally that the problem of erosion although real is self inflicted and can only be cured within The author suggests that the question of unionization is not over and that professional associations such as the AUSA might be play an important part in eliminating the need from outside for a military trade union The Journal of the Armed Forces, 1894 An Analysis of Military Unionization in Austria, Denmark and Sweden Joseph P. Mockaitis, Donald E.
