Transfer On Trial:

Transfer on Trial Douglas K. Detterman, Robert J. Sternberg, 1993 The importance of transfer for understanding intelligence cognition and education has been debated for a century as it has been one of the central theoretical issues in psychology education and cognition Education theories are based on the assumption that students will transfer what they learn in school to new situations But what if transfer does not occur Much of current educational practice could be called into question This book presents views on the status of transfer research Detterman argues that there is little evidence to support the existence of the transfer of complex skills such as those usually taught in school Contributors Earl C Butterfield and James G Greeno argue that transfer not only exists but that it is fundamental to complex cognitive performance Other contributors take intermediate positions presenting a review of transfer studies in applied domains These authors explore the situations in which transfer can or cannot occur

Digital Skills and Life-long Learning: Digital Learning as a New Insight of Enhanced Learning by the Innovative Approach Joining Technology and Cognition Dina Di Giacomo, Pierpaolo Vittorini, Pilar Lacasa, 2019-03-01 Recently technology and aging have been key research areas in human cognition The Research Topic Digital Skills and Life long Learning Digital Learning as a New Insight of Enhanced Learning by the Innovative Approach Joining Technology and Cognition investigated technology s impact on cognitive and intellectual processes highlighting how intensively technology can change and or enhance the cognitive functioning throughout one s lifespan The aim of this Research Topic was to provide an outlook through multidisciplinary research and development while addressing the dynamic intersection of cognition mind and technology Our scope was 1 to favor the cognitive technology debate 2 to overcome the dichotomies of technology and psychology 3 to emphasize the advances in knowledge and well being This Research Topic comprises review studies and original articles focused on digital skills that enhance human potential Transversal approaches and cross sectorial analysis were encouraged leading to investigation areas related to cognitive and mental processing in educational rehabilitation clinical settings across aging Articles of high relevance to the Research Topic were submitted on the subjects of a research in human performance and human factors b new research and technologies addressing the needs of a growing populace and c cognitive aging and cognitive rehabilitation research

Cognitive Development and the Ageing Process Patrick Rabbitt, 2019-05-21 In the World Library of Psychologists series international experts present career long collections of what they judge to be their most interesting publications extracts from books key articles research findings practical and theoretical contributions Professor Patrick Rabbitt has been a prominent contributor to knowledge of cognitive performance and cognitive ageing for over half a century He has made a range of significant contributions to gerontological research from the development of information processing theories in the 1950s and 1960s to a new understanding of decision making and the ageing process in subsequent decades This collection of his research articles represents a review of how work in cognitive performance and cognitive ageing has developed in the past 50 years Whilst the nature of scientific research means that some of the questions posed have since been answered Rabbitt adds introductory sections to articles which contextualise its place in the subject area and offer a personal view on the evolution of the field This book is important because it provides a perspective on the development of cognitive research and the ageing process through the work of an active researcher in the field It will interest all students and researchers interested in cognitive development and gerontology

What can simple brains teach us about how vision works Davide Zoccolan, David D. Cox, Andrea Benucci, R. Clay Reid, 2015-11-18 Vision is the process of extracting behaviorally relevant information from patterns of light that fall on retina as the eyes sample the outside world Traditionally nonhuman primates macaque monkeys in particular have been viewed by many as the animal model of choice for investigating the neuronal substrates of visual processing not only because their visual systems closely mirror our own but also because it is often assumed that simpler brains lack advanced visual processing machinery However this narrow view of visual neuroscience ignores the fact that vision is widely distributed throughout the animal kingdom enabling a wide repertoire of complex behaviors in species from insects to birds fish and mammals Recent years have seen a resurgence of interest in alternative animal models for vision research especially rodents This resurgence is partly due to the availability of increasingly powerful experimental approaches e g optogenetics and two photon imaging that are challenging to apply to their full potential in primates Meanwhile even more phylogenetically distant species such as birds fish and insects have long been workhorse animal models for gaining insight into the core computations underlying visual processing In many cases these animal models are valuable precisely because their visual systems are simpler than the primate visual system Simpler systems are often easier to understand and studying a diversity of neuronal systems that achieve similar functions can focus attention on those computational principles that are universal and essential This Research Topic provides a survey of the state of the art in the use of animal models of visual functions that are alternative to macaques It includes original research methods articles reviews and opinions that exploit a variety of animal models including rodents birds fishes and insects as well as small New World monkey the marmoset to investigate visual function The experimental approaches covered by these studies range from psychophysics and electrophysiology to histology and genetics testifying to the richness and depth of visual neuroscience in non macaque species
