Women Making A Difference:

Women Making Constitutions A. Dobrowolsky, V. Hart, 2003-11-04 This volume provides a timely and revealing account of women's constitutional strategies and struggles. It compares and contrasts the latest constitutional developments within the United Kingdom with women's past and present struggles in countries including Canada, the United States, and South Africa. Through theoretical engagement and practical experiences, the contributors develop crucial arguments on the nature and effect of constitutional change, equality, women's rights, and representation. This shows how women through their words and deeds have challenged and shaped the nature and forms of constitutionalism.

Girls Rock! Fifty Years of Women Making Music Mina Carson, Tisa Lewis, Susan M. Shaw, 2004 Girls Rock explores the many ways women have defined themselves as rock musicians in an industry once dominated and controlled by men. Integrating history, feminist analysis, and developmental theory, the authors describe how and why women have become rock musicians, what inspires them to play and perform, how they write, what their music means to them, and what they hope their music means to listeners. As these musicians tell their stories, topics emerge that illuminate broader trends in rock's history. From Wanda Jackson's revolutionary act of picking up a guitar to the current success of independent artists such as Ani DiFranco, Girls Rock examines the shared threads of these performers' lives and the evolution of women's roles in rock music since its beginnings in the 1950s. This provocative investigation of women in rock is based on numerous interviews with a broad spectrum of women performers: those who have achieved fame and those just starting bands, those playing at local coffeehouses and those selling out huge arenas. Girls Rock celebrates what female musicians have to teach about their experiences as women artists and rock musicians.

The Impact of Women in Congress Debra L. Dodson, 2006-05-18 While existing literature provides compelling evidence that women in public office make a difference, the relationship between descriptive and substantive representation of women in political institutions, long the domain of men, is neither simple nor certain. Embracing New Institutionalists' warnings of the dangers of studying behaviour in an institutional vacuum, this book uses two strikingly different yet consecutive congresses: the Democratically controlled 103rd Congress elected during the Year of the Woman and the Republican controlled 104th Congress elected during the Year of the Angry White Male, as laboratories to explore the complexity of the relationship between women's presence and impact. In-depth interviews with hundreds of staff lobbyists and women members of Congress, along with other quantitative and archival data, are the foundation for case studies of three highly visible policy areas: reproductive rights, women's health, and health care policy, important to women but with strikingly different outcomes across the two Congresses. The inquiry is quickly moved beyond the simple question: Do women make a difference? Dodson confronts the contested issues surrounding difference, which often lurk beneath the surface: the probabilistic rather than deterministic relationship between descriptive and substantive representation of women, the contested legitimacy of women representing women, and the disagreement about what it means to represent women. The analysis moves the literature toward a better integrated understanding of how gendered forces at the individual institutional and societal levels combine to reinforce and redefine gendered relationships to power in the public sphere. The results can be generalized over time and across settings and are meaningful even in periods when the answer to the question of whether women make a difference seems to be more frequently no than yes and point to strategies that may bolster the impact of women's presence for substantive representation of women.

Sharing Power Manon Tremblay, 2017-03-02 The representation of women in parliament is a subject of extensive research and a focus for political action in the last decade. The wide variation in women's parliamentary presence contradicts the expectation that established or consolidated democracies are more supportive of the presence of women in political life than emerging democracies. This volume explains this variation through a series of closely investigated case studies from the post-Communist transition democracies of Eastern Europe and emerging democracies in Asia and the Middle East to the long-established liberal democratic states. The volume examines the history of women's legislative involvement clearly addressing the issue of equal opportunities for women in political life on a cross-national basis. It also identifies innovative solutions to redress the power-sharing balance between women and men. Offering a unique comparative perspective, Sharing Power will appeal to students and scholars of politics, women's studies, history, and legislative studies.

Globalization and Inequalities Sylvia Walby, 2009-07-23 How has globalization changed social inequality? Why do Americans die younger than Europeans despite larger incomes? Is there an alternative to neoliberalism? Who are the champions of social democracy? Why are some countries more violent than others? In this groundbreaking book, Sylvia Walby examines the many changing forms of social inequality and their intersectionalities at both country and global levels. She shows how the contest between different modernities and conceptions of progress shape the present and future. The book rethinks the nature of economy, polity, civil society, and violence. It places globalization and inequalities at the centre of an innovative new understanding of modernity and progress and demonstrates the power of these theoretical reformulations in practice, drawing on global data and in-depth analysis of the US and EU. Walby analyses the tensions between the different forces that are shaping global futures. She examines the regulation and deregulation of employment and welfare, domestic and public gender regimes, secular and religious politics, path-dependent trajectories, and global political waves and global inequalities and human rights.
