W. Headley, 2015-06-02 Excerpt from Problems of Evolution In this hook I attempt to find a solution of some of the most difficult of the problems of evolution First I try to show that Lamarck's explanation of evolution will not bear investigation But if the dovetailing of species into their environment has not been brought about as he maintained that it had by the moulding influence of the environment itself and the development of the organism by exercise how have adaptations been effected To account for them the Neo Darwinian the follower of Weismann has at his service only variations he assumes that a tendency to vary pervades the whole organic world and as a regulating principle Natural Selection Nothing further as I hope to make clear is wanted to account for all the niceties of adaptation Moreover evolution appears to follow certain lines and species group themselves in orderly series This becomes intelligible if we realise that all species even the lowest to a certain extent pilot themselves In other words heredity limits the range of variation and limits it more narrowly as evolution advances Sexual selection and isolation present problems which though perhaps of less importance are of the utmost interest The second part of the book deals with human evolution About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Annual Report of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution Smithsonian Institution.
