How increases in Automation Support Manufacturing Productivity

The increase in demand for manufacturing goods after 2020 prompted an increase in automation. The sought manufacturing productivity gains have been impressive, such as the fact that since 2017, although growth has slowed to a crawl, despite U.S. employment growth leveling off, its spending in manufacturing has risen at a steady pace, including a rate growth. To overcome this, manufacturers have turned to automation. These increases in employment and automation seem to have exceeded the previous level of setting manufacturing productivity.

Spikes in manufacturing goods reported following 2020.

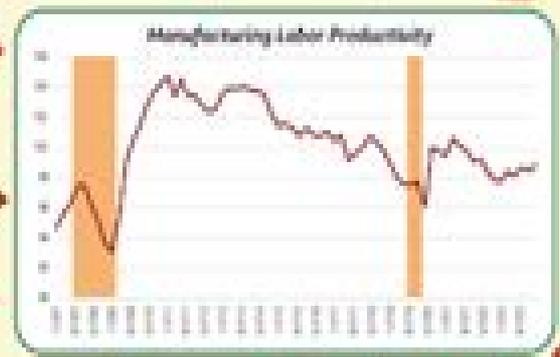

Investment in manufacturing equipment is more significant overall.

Increased supply orders in an expanding economy, and rising of consumer.
