Eating and Identity in Postcolonial Fiction Paul Vltos, 2018-10-11 This book focuses on the fiction of four postcolonial authors V S Naipaul Anita Desai Timothy Mo and Salman Rushdie It argues that meals in their novels act as sites where the relationships between the individual subject and the social identities of race class and gender are enacted Drawing upon a variety of academic fields and disciplines including postcolonial theory historical research food studies and recent attempts to rethink the concept of world literature it dedicates a chapter to each author tracing the literary cultural and historical contexts in which their texts are located and exploring the ways in which food and the act of eating acquire meanings and how those meanings might clash collide and be disputed Not only does this book offer suggestive new readings of the work of its four key authors but it challenges the reader to consider the significance of food in postcolonial fiction more generally

Cultures in Movement Martine Raibaud, Ionut Untea, Micéala Symington, 2015-02-05 The contributors to this volume encourage a rethinking of the very notion of culture by examining the experiences situations and the representations of those who chose or were forced to change cultures from the nineteenth century to the present day Beyond a simple study of migration forced or otherwise this collective work also re-examines the model of integration As recent entrants into new social settings may be perceived as affecting the previously accepted social equilibrium mechanisms encouraging or inhibiting population flows are sometimes put in place From this perspective integration may become less a matter of internal choice than an external obligation imposed by the dominant political power in which case integration may only be a euphemism for cultural uniformity The strategies of cultural survival developed as a reaction to such a rising tide of cultural uniformity can be seen as necessary points of departure for an ever growing shared multiculturalism A long term voluntary commitment to make cultural boundaries more flexible and allow a more engaged individual participation in the process of defining the self and finding its place within a culture in movement may represent a key element for cultural cohesion in a globalized world
